Love quotes for girlfriend from the heart

Expressing feelings is not always an easy task. For that reason, when we have something important to say to a love interest, we often opt for love quotes written or vocalized by others to express our thoughts. There are a few reasons for this, according to experts. In most cases, people feel that the words of famous people, or those found in popular songs and great literary works, carry more weight than our own words. When people share their feelings with someone who is important to them, they want their words to express those feelings accurately. Not everyone can be a wordsmith. The History of Sharing Quotes Goes Back Further Than You Think!n the High Middle Ages were troubadours a fixture in royal courts, singing songs and reciting poems about courtly love and the code of chivalry. Stories, songs and poems focused on romance, love and broken hearts have survived throughout human history because they accurately convey what people feel. Today it is not unusual to see lists of love quotes containing words written by the greatest authors and philosophers of our time, including William Shakespeare; Alfred, Lord Tennyson; Edgar Allen Poe; and Voltaire. Tis better to have loved and lost, than never to have loved at all - Alfred Lord Tennyson, In Memoriam AHHToday, people often choose love quotes from literary classics, popular culture, or celebrities to express feelings of soul-binding love, physical attraction, and heartbreak. Expressing love or affection for another person is often difficult, but it is usually easier to do so through the words of others. An individual can choose a quote based on a comment about the purpose of their admiration and love using a few lines written by a dear author or poet, such as this famous stanza from Lord Byron's poem She Walks in Beauty:She runs in beauty, like the night's cloudless climates and starry skies; And all that is the best of dark and brightMeet in her aspect and her eyes ... A love quote can express an explosive love, a tender love, familial love, or a steady and long-term relationship. Whether it's a quote from a book, a line from a movie or song, or the words of a famous personality, the most important thing to remember is to choose a love quote that is unique and personal. For every event, holiday or feeling we have the perfect quote to inspire, lift you up or make you chuckle. It's easy for us to forget small progress we make every day, because they don't seem to contribute much to what we want. However, big things can't happen without small steps we take, just like you don't reach the top of the ladder without stepping on the rungs. Always remember, no matter how small your progress, moving forward is forward. Appreciate yourself with every little progress you've made and by doing this, you don't have to wait until you look back to see how many great things you've done! Being romantic you profess your love, you are poetic, and you are cute. But what is the best way to do what should be easiest: to express, then the most basic approach: I love you? Here are some quotes trying to find that simplicity. It's hard to be sure who wrote a few, but the thought is what's important, not the family tree. It's always best to put your declaration of love in your own words, but maybe one of these will work for you, or maybe they will inspire you to come up with your own combination of words. As Plato probably said: At the touch of love, everyone becomes a poet. Leo Christopher. The wisest man on Instagram I swear I couldn't love you more than I do now, and yet I know I will tomorrow. Roy Croft, American poet (possibly a pseudonym) I love you not only for what you are, but for what I am when I'm with you. Emily Bronte, English writer and poet If raindrops were kissing, I'd send you showers. If hugs were seas, I'd send you oceans. And if love was a person, I'd send you me. Atticus, Greek or Roman philosopher I will never be perfect for you, but I will always try to be imperfect. R.M Drake (Robert Macias), self-published poet It was the way you laughed; I knew That's what I wanted in my life. Anais Nin, French author You carry with you a reflection of me, part of me. I dreamed of you. I wished you existed. You'll always be a part of my life. If I love you, it must be because at some point we shared the same imagination, the same madness, the same stage. Franz Kafka, Austro-Hungarian writer I know of no greater happiness than to be with you all the time, without interruption, without end. A.A. Milne, British author, created Winnie-the-Pooh If you live to be a hundred, I want to live to a hundred minus a day, so I never have to live without you. J.R.R. Tolkien, British author I'd rather spend a life with you than face all ages of this world alone. Charlotte Brontë, English writer, Jane Eyre I found for the first time what I can really love- I've found you. You are my sympathy - my better self - my good angel - I am bound to you with a strong attachment. I think you are good, gifted, beautiful: a fiery, a solemn passion is conceived in my heart; it leans towards you, draws you to my center and the spring of life, wraps my existence over you – and creates in pure, powerful flame, melts you and me into one. Honore de Balzac, French writer and playwright Tonight I can only say that I love you too much for my peace of mind, and that the absence of you is death for me. Hermann Hesse, German writer and poet f I know what love is, it's because of you. Angelita Lim, probably a poet. Then I saw that you perfect and I loved you even more. Nicholas Sparks, American novelist and screenwriter You are the answer to every prayer I have offered. You're a song, a dream, a whisper, and I Know how I could have lived as long without you as I did. Anonymous If I follow my heart, it leads me to you.
