The historian Herodoth wrote of a tribe he called neuri. They all transformed into wolves each year over a period of several days, and then returned to their human form. Other tales speak of humans turned into wolves by Zeus as punishment for various crimes. Still others talk about humans who could transform themselves into wolves and return to human form at will. The Roman poet Ovid wrote of Lycaones in his Metamorphosis. Belief in werewolves did not take over Europe until the Middle Ages. The first known written use of the word werwolf is found in an 11th-century German manuscript. In Norse and Icelandic legend, great warriors dressed in wolf skins. They thought it gave them wolf characteristics such as bravery and ferocity. Later, werewolves came to partner with vampires in eastern Europe and with witches in Europe For the Renaissance, one of the many charges against Christian heirs was that they were werewolves. When or where they lived, werewolves wore the same type of clothing as their neighbors, when they were in human form. So, if you want, you could create a mashup mashup For example, you could be one of Ovid's Lycaones combining a toga suit with a wolf mask. You could be a werewolf almost any time or place by adding a wolf mask and gloves to any historical or ethnic costume. There have been many modern attempts to explain werewolves. Some have seen them as misinterpretations of medical conditions such as porphyria or hypertrichosis. In a very rare psychiatric condition called lycanthropy, the affected person has a fixed delirium that is a wolf. In medieval thought, werewolves transformed by magic or witchcraft. The predominant modern ideas about werewolves date only from the mid-19th and early 20th centuries. The transformation at the time of the full moon first appears in an 1847 novel, Wagner the Wehr-Wolf by G. W.M. Reynolds. The idea that a werewolf destroys what he likes most originated in the 1935 film Werewolf of London. His resistance to injury and vulnerability to elements made of silver date to the 1941 classic Lon Chaney, Jr. The Wolf-Man. The idea that werewolves have a disease, transmitted either by heredity or by a bite from one, is even more recent. Recent portraits of werewolves have been sympathetic. An example is David Kessler in 1981's An American Werewolf in London. Another is Professor Remus Lupin in the Harry Potter books and films. If you want to become a werewolf, you don't have to bite. Choose one of our classic werewolf costumes and start practicing your howl. We have werewolf costumes for children and adults. Attack fear into neighbors, inhabitants of medieval village, and teenage vampires, too! You can wear makeup to transform your face, or wear one of our werewolf masks. You need to decide if you are a rapacious monster, or a defender of humans against evil vampires! (We have a wig that allows you to look like one of these) Update 22/09/2011: Thanks for checking out this tutorial! I have a lot of questions about it every year around this time and they're usually the same, so let's clear up a couple of things. -Where to buy skin: or google/ebay fake skin -Where to buy foam: Michaels or JoAnn's... or another fabric/craft shop, ask for upholstery foam -How much skin do I need?: I can't answer this since everyone is a different size and I don't remember how much I used for the project. -Can I borrow/have/buy the dress? No, the dress no longer exists. All that remains is the head and it is not in the best shape. The rest was used for other projects (note that it is a 4-year project) -Will you build me a dress? Sorry, im not available for that. Thats why i did this tutorial! :) This is a way to build this type of costume ... there are all kinds of better materials and methods out there! See how you can put your own spin on it or improve it. If you're left with a problem, try investigating it a little poking around the line ... sometimes this can lead you to a better solution. Basically don't be afraid and just try it... that's how you're going to learn! I'm sorry to say I won't be answering questions about this build because of a very reserved work schedule. Have a great Halloween! ----- create your own werewolf costume! Jaw moving, padded body, lots of skin! I would like to express how excited iam to see this posted around the internet. This is my second full crazy outfit, the first being an armored demon. I make your outfit as a hobby, but I'm a full-time artist. If I had known that so many people would be looking at this, I would have documented the steps a little better. If you have any questions, feel free to ask through commenting on this site and I will try to answer it as best I can. Thanks for checking out my Instructable. I hope it inspires you to make a great average creature of your own! Have a great Halloween!
