My wife and I chose this place for dinner because we were in a nearby hotel. Wow factor out of the way attracted us. On the ground floor there is a bar and a bar and restaurant upstairs. Upstairs apparently you can only reach by stairs, so we almost left because my wife has problems with her knee. But she sucked it up and climbed to the second floor. Upstairs it's pretty beautiful, with exposed beams, a nice gas fireplace in the center of the restaurant, and a nice U-shaped bar. I should have checked before we arrived). It turned out that most people gave the place a meh rating, so I started to worry. But our server was friendly and helpful, and the food was good. My wife had a burger - the menu included some interesting burger portions, but they were happy that they only made a plan for an old cheeseburger. I had a grilled reuben. We were both pleased with our choices, along with fresh fries that reminded us of the french fries promenade. Crispy, a little greasy and delicious. All in all, we are glad that we went. There may be plenty of better places in the area, but we certainly wouldn't have problems back here in the future. If the tooth was excavated yesterday, they mainly need soft food. He had a longing for crabcakes. I saw the sign of the best crabcakes in the PA, saw some positive feedback, gave it a chance. First, very positive: I go with reeds, wrnt up the access ramp and was ... greeted by a friendly man. He said the dinner was upstairs. I asked about the elevator. No, I started going out. That said, I can be served on the first floor. High marks for this, thank you very much. Then I saw the menu. Apparently crab dough is entrée with 21 for one 8 or 9 ounce cake, 39 for 2, or only 5 more for some shrimp. So I ordered crab bites for 14. Finally, expecting tasty crabcakes. No lumps of crab meat as far as I could tell. 5 bites, each, smaller than mcnugget. Even bread or biscuits, or breaksticks. In general, eh. More eh. More
