Sandwich places near me drive thru

Watch as cards There is no doubt about the convenience of a good old fashioned drive-thru. It's true that most of the city's drive-thrus are very mediocre chains, but there are also a number of locally born favorites that serve top-notch eaters that don't even require getting out of the car. From 1950s burger joints to boozy frozen daiquiris to fried chicken and tacos, these 12 essential Dallas drive-thru restaurants serve budget-friendly eats and keep the service fast without skimping on quality. Is your favorite Dallas drive-thru missing from this map? Shout it out in the comments. Read more Note: Restaurants on this map are listed geographically. Since a Hawaiian vacation is off the cards for now, head to The Colony for a plate of Hawaiian barbecue that will almost make it feel like you're in Aloha state. Choose a protein - maybe kalua pork or chicken Katsu, then pair with steamed rice, macaroni salad, and steamed veggies for a real plate lunch experience in Texas. 2. Tongue In Kind Ice Cream With options like banana pudding, cinnamon chip, and dairy-free raspberry buttercream, choosing a flavor on this Richardson creamery is really the hardest part. Order a scoop (or three) in a cup or waffle cone, and take a pint for the way to eat in a sitting later at home. 3. Hat Creek Burger Company It's not technically a local Dallas chain, but Texas-born Hat Creek Burger Company flings a solid menu through its drive-thru window. Burger is in the name, but consider the crispy fried chicken sandwich, or a Cobb salad filled with blue cheese and bacon, then wash it all down with a super-thick milkshake. This taqueria chain has locations all over Dallas, and the outpost of Harry Hines slings breakfast, lunch and dinner right out of the drive-thru window. Feast on sopos or nachos, or keep it simple with a two taco platter (served with rice and beans), which is a really good deal at less than $7. Technically a drive-in and not a drive-thru, Keller's has served up one of Dallas' most beloved burgers since 1950. Pull up, flash your headlights, and prepare to experience burger bliss on a poppy seed bun. Definitely don't forget to add a page of super-crunchy tots. 6. Bubba's Cooks Country - Dallas A Highland Park institution, it's almost shocking how homemade food at Bubba's Cooks Country seems. Walk through the drive-thru for crispy fried chicken, comforting sides like creamy potatoes, ambrosia fruit salad and candied yams, and the ridiculously good yeast rolls. White Rock Coffee Express This location of local coffee roastery White Rock Coffee serves muffins, smoothies, hot oatmeal and of course coffee, all forming a drive through. The café just rolled out its autumn lunch menu with pumpkin hummus, a harvest chicken wrap with quinoa and a fried harvest vegetable salad. A beloved burger with generations of fans in Dallas, Burger House is an obvious drive-thru destination. Even the restaurant's seasoning salt, shaken on crispy french fries, has a cult following. Open in the Google Maps Foursquare An East Dallas drive-in staple since 1956, Dairy-Ette is the kind of old-school burger joint that nostalgic dreams were made of. Pull up, flash the headlights, and order a cheeseburger all the way and a large cup of Dairy-Ette's homemade root beer. A favorite among many Dallas chefs, Great American Hero is a stalwart of the city's sandwich scene. Hit drive-thru for an Italian meatball hero, griddled Cuban panini, or the restaurant's namesake sandwich, involving a combination of bologna, provolone, baked ham and Genoa salami. Not all good drive-thrus serves food, and Daiquiris to Go is proof. Swing through for a boozy slushy in flavors like Dirty Kinfolk (strawberry and peach) and Royal Fuck (sweet and sour with cranberries) and definitely wait to drink until after safely making it home. A longtime South Dallas favorite, go to Rudy's for a no-frills fried chicken experience. Order breasts, wings, thighs, or any combo of the above, and pair with dirty rice, corn apple slices and a side of Rudy sauce. © 2021 Vox Media, Inc. Link copied to clipboard.
