While it may not attract the attention of critics as much as Game of Thrones or The Vikings, The Last Kingdom has emerged as one of the most underrated television shows on Netflix. Not only is it full of stories and characters, but it's also an astonishing battle sequence and battle. So here's the question for the fans. If you had to choose which battles or battles are best, what would you ultimately choose? Even better, who felt they had fulfilled their expectations or felt anti-climate? Here are the best and worst scenes of the fight in the Last Kingdom. 10 Worst: Defending Aethelred Before they officially made their romance in season four, Uhtred gave Æthelflæd a promise to come to her aid if she ever needed it. Æthelflæd eventually demanded his protection in season 3, when Hæsten tracked her to the monastery and vougled revenge against her for killing Sigefrid. As soon as Hæsten and his men broke into the monastery, fans expected a violent sequence to follow – especially since Hæsten was determined to retaliate. Uhtred, however, easily beat them by offering them to Skade in exchange for Æthelflæd. Why he didn't even suggest it is a guess. 9 Best: Battle Of Edington In the final one of the season 1, the fans finally got the Saxo's head on with the Vikings at the Battle of Edington. With Guthrum's army still holding Winchester, Uhtred and Alfred tried to drive him out of Wessex once and for all. Although the Vikings seemed to have an advantage, Skorpa realizes they've made a fatal mistake and changed tactics. While Uhtredu and Alfred manage to regulate and eliminate two major threats, they have also suffered a great loss. Not only did Uhtred lose his right arm in Leofric, but he also lost his lover Iseult. The victory was deserved. 8 Worst: The Battle of Mercia Since they were in a quasi-relationship, it was no surprise that Uhtred did not miss time joining Æthelflædu on the battlefield. Especially since her husband and brother left her in times of need. But Æthelflæd was soon relieved when Hywel, Edward and Æthelred returned with their forces. The fight was quite exciting, especially as fans prayed that Cnut got his arrival because he played a part in Ragnar's death. The problem was that everything was a little bit Since he killed the love of her life, Brida stabbed him in the stomach as if it was easy for him. 7 Best: The Battle of Dunholm After years of believing that their sister was dead, Ragnar and Uhtred joined forces to end Kjart's torment. While Uhtred and his crew tried to inhale into the fortress, Ragnar led the scattering, allowing the plan to be easy. As Kjartan and Sven were occupied by Ragnar, Uhtred managed to unlock the gate and let his other forces in. After the abuse and torture, fans felt it was a good ending for Sven to die at the hands of Thyre. Although it was quite brutal and terrible, Ragnar also got closure for his family by killing Kjartan. Finally, the family sat down again. 6 Worst: The Battle of London Uhtred is not one to make many mistakes. However, in season 2, he made a grave when he entered a trap that left all the women in the camp unprotected and helpless. As a result, Erik and Sigefrid took this opportunity to insouze the camp and kidnap Æthelflæd as a hostage. The scene is even worse because viewers are forced to watch the Viking brothers kill hundreds of innocent women and children. It was just a disappointment that this battle would be extended even further. 5 Best: The Battle of the Skades After abdicated skadeu in exchange for Æthelflæd's life, Uhtred travelled to Beamfleoat to try to get her back. After the challenge of Hæsten, Uhtred lure him to a field on the outskirts of the fortress and confront his forces. Although Alfred had proved himself with his army, the episode ended on a cliffhanger when he refused to intervene. Because Edward refused to watch Uhtreda and his men kill, he ordered a march and helped the Exorcist of the Danes to refuse them. Uhtred may not have got the Skade back, but he put dinner in Hæsten's army and back Beamfleoat. 4 Worst: The Battle of Winchester After Hywel was allowed to capture Brida, fans expected a bloody massacre the next time she met Uhtredo - especially since he was inadvertently responsible for the torture she suffered at the hands of Hywel's men. Uhtred met his game in Sigtryggru, which he saved and eventually took Winchester. When it came time for Edward to regain his seat, fans were on the tenterhooki as tensions between the parties escalated. They were even more interested in them when Sigtryggr demanded to see Uhtredo. But it turns out dane just wanted to negotiate. The battle didn't last even five minutes - the real one was late. 3 Best: Battle Of Beamfleoat Battle of Beamfleoat is one that fans won't forget as it closed the book on Erik and Sigefrid's story. When Erik and Æthelflæd fell in love, the Vikings decided to help Uhtredo save her. In the end, it didn't settle well with my brother, as they were arguing over Erik, who chose love over fame. While Sigefrid killed Erik, The Viking died not long after he had to face Alfred and his forces. As the violent battle was thrilled, fans saw that Æthelflæd was a hero, because she was the one who took Sigefrid's life. It was kind of revenge for him after everything he did. 2 Worst: The struggles of Bebbanburg Over the past four years, Uhtred has told everyone about his dream of recapturing Bebbanburg and how it was his birth. So when the show revealed that season four of Uhtred would finally challenge his uncle, they were all more than ecstatic. But when the episode finally arrived, fans were disappointed with the outcome. Not only did Uhtred never get a chance to get back at Ælfric, but he had to step aside after his men turned on him. Worse, Beocca was killed. It was very disappointing and devastating. 1 Best: Battle Of Bedanford All fans will agree that the Battle of Bedanford was the most satisfying of all. For? Because this was the place where Æthelwold was killed. For three years, fans were forced to watch as poison was dripping into the ear of anyone who would listen. In season 3, he became even more raving, as the tinge of power saw him kill Ragnar. But his betrayal was soon uncovered, and Uhtred killed him. With the Danes defeated again and Ragnar redeemed, it was a celebration all around for Uhtred.
