Truebill is an independent third-party service that acts as an authorized representative when you delete subscriptions on your behalf. Can you name all the subscriptions you pay for? Unknown or unwanted subscription can cost an average of $512 per year. Yes No I joined the mentorbox program last year. I am a fast learner and have enrolled in various online programs before as well. But this experience is somewhat different. Unlike other websites where everything is there to know, this website is tricky. I tried to sign up during the free trial period. It did ask me for all the personal and billing information. I signed up for it, and three days later, I received a message about payment information from my credit card company to MentorBox. I immediately called the credit card company to make sure if the message was a deducted payment or a license to pay. And it's been confirmed that the payment has already been made. Later in the evening, I tried to contact mentorbox's customer service number. I was angry because he never sent me the memo before the payment was deducted from my account. I heard someone laughing. And the call was disconnected. So, I called him back. This time, a lady was talking to me. He said that refunds could not be made as they were against the policy. Plus, he called me irresponsible for not keeping track of the days and putting the blame on them. He said the subscription could only be deleted by email. I sent them away and asked him to cancel the subscription today. I received an automatically generated email. Thinking that the subscription had been canceled, I let the case go away. They asked for $7 for nothing. After the program stuck, I looked at the lessons. I should have known. A company using such unethical sales tactics would never give anything meaningful. After a month, the amount was deducted again. I was surprised and shocked at the same time. I called them again, and the same battle began. I was asked to send them the email I sent earlier to send the refund. I did it. Nothing happened. They slept through it. You leave me without answers. I kept calling them, and I stopped them from calling my credit card company. They did try few times in the next month to deduct the payment but were backlisted in the attempt. This company is a fraud. He accuses people without their consent. And emails intended to cancel your subscription are the only way not to it doesn't work for me. I contacted the customer customer in the case of refunds which are not driven. After months of tracking, I only received subscription cancellation approval via email. Wow! They heard it so soon. If these guys can't answer your emails right away, what else can they handle. Worse courses, tricky website and a loop of uns approved payments. These are the things that get the money and you spend time with these guys. And a headache that lasts forever. Don't fall for the ads or promises they make. It's just cheating and nothing else. MentorBox is a scam for useless books and courses. MentorBox is a subscription service that offers its subscribers summaries of non-fiction books. Summary hashes are available in both digital and print versions. The latter can be delivered to the user's address. The virtual credit card is changing the free trials game How many valuable dollars do you waste over the years simply because you forgot to cancel your free online trial time? It's a very common issue and a particularly annoying one at that. That's why donotpay's free trial card was created, which works based on some basic rules that are incredibly effective at saving money. Thanks to the random credit card information generated, which you can enter when signing up for free online trials, you no longer have to worry about automatically renewed subscription fees in your bank account. The free trial card runs on some basic principles: Generate random credit card information Gets approved for free trial sites that don't get approved subscription sites donotpay trims subscription costs The New York Times has revealed that Americans spent an average of $640 on all digital subscriptions in 2019, and that number is expected to rise in the future. If that number sounds about right for you, it might be time to go through your subscription list and make some long overdue cuts. DoNotPay can automate this process – simply connect your email address or bank account to our app to find out which paid subscriptions you need to cancel as soon as possible. How else doNotPay make your life easier? Download DoNotPay in your browser, we'll be able to help you with a range of everyday tasks: Tai Lopez and Alex Mehr P.H.D are the two brains behind MentorBox although I think that there's a team of marketers behind the scenes working full-time to create new ads, sales sites and even sells. I can't even go on Facebook currently without seeing ads for Mentorbox, so I took the hype to show you exactly what you get, here's my MentorBox Review. There are so many positive reviews of Mentorbox online, they are all affiliates, and then there are a lot of negative ones, these disgruntled consumers who feel ripped off or scammed due to the sales channel. The first page to land when you click on one of the millions of ads flooding Facebook, Google, Instagram or various search partners on the sales page is the $7/$9 per month plan free 3-day trial. The advertisement I saw indicated that books were delivered directly to the every month, so going to the sales page is what I expected, and consuming $7 or $9 a month seems like a great entry-level price. If you think about it, you certainly won't get a book delivered to that price, and if you read the sales page it's quickly obvious you're buying access to the membership page for the lessons of certain ebooks. Since I originally purchased it by updating the sales page so it's clearer what you're buying, there's the teachable screenshots that actually show what you get. The first red flag here is the audiobook clocks and nuggets supposedly included if the actual fact is that they are not. When you put the details in the 2 step order form you will quickly find out that it costs $89 extra. So you're actually just now at the video workshop for free and then $7/mo or $59 a year. The marketing team at MentorBox have done quite well to remove the price, instead of using FREE everywhere. MentorBox Upsells (CAUTION!) It is important to note that MentorBox is constantly changing and adding or removing upsells from the funnel. These were correct from January 2018, when I passed the funnel. The first biggest problem with the Mentorbox upsell funnel was the $199 upsell from the Entrepreneurship Academy and I can guarantee that's where most consumers feel they are getting ripped off and calling it a scam. There's a sales video that goes to the academy, the price isn't said. Below the video is a button that says: Access to the Academy now, and by clicking on this account you will immediately receive $199 on your credit card. If you scroll down the page, you'll see more sign-up buttons, videos, and reports. When you finally get to the bottom of the page for the price, $199.MentorBox would make an absolute killing of this upsell as consumers are likely to click the button thinking they will get access for free. If you read reviews online, everyone here calls the site a scam. So you still haven't made it to the monthly book delivery service. There's a downsell for those who don't take a $199 academy where you get a $100 grant as if it were some kind of university. Then there's the upsell in monthly book delivery, which is $139 a month. I read other reviews online where it was $87 a month, it seems that we've risen the price to another $50 due to the success of the subscription service. Unfortunately there is no downsell, so this price you are stuck with. Personally, $139 for some books in a box with an audio USB and some other merchandise seems like a fairly high price for the average consumer. I would much rather go to the bookstore and buy a few books, some coffee and choose the best ones every month. Then there's an upsell in a $6 monthly academy called Money and Investing. I didn't join, so I have no idea what it is or whether it's worth it. That's funneling if you do it. on the success page and thank you page. Within 15 minutes, you will receive your data in Teachable and you can log in and start web workshops. Is MentorBox a scam? In one sentence, mentorbox is not a scam, but uses one-click upsells and price marketing tactics, such as excluding the price of the action buttons. In-touch users will know that you are using Clicktöl and not accidentally click on the green buttons. In my opinion (and marketer's) the first upsell is unethical and a sure fire way to piss consumers off by charging them $199 for a service that I have no idea what the price really is before doing so. If it was a front-end offer I can assure you Facebook and Google won't approve your ads. How do I delete Mentorbox? The only way to cancel MentorBox is by emailing the support desk, - Tai Lopez claims this website is making $50,000 per day so I imagine it will take weeks to respond to their deletion email. Given you only get a 3 day free trial by the time I email them and get answers I can 100% tell you the trial will be billed for the paid version. That's why there are so many disgruntled people out there. My advice if you are serious about registering is to use your Visa Gift Card for $5 credit. This is enough to get you through visa moon to check your card and then delete your billing after 3 days. FaqWhat is MentorBox? Mentorbox is a hara subscription box with online training created by Alex Mehr and Tai Lopez.Is MentorBox worth it? Based on our testing and our own assessments, Mentorbox is not worth the price. Is MentorBox a scam? There are many posts out there calling it a scam, you can read the user comments in the review. How much does MentorBox cost? It costs $7/month for the online version which can be purchased annually for $59. Physical books cost $89 a month. What are the best alternatives to MentorBox? There are many alternatives out there such as Blinkist which costs the same price. How do I get a MentorBox refund? You can request a refund, but it's hard to get support, you may need to contact your bank if MentorBox doesn't respond to your email (common). (common).
