Man down season 1 episode 4 cast

Travel down memory lane that will make you feel nostalgic AF The producers of This Is Us hinted some time ago that we would be spending a lot of time with Jack in Vietnam this season, and tonight's gruelling episode certainly made good on that promise. Highlighting Milo Ventimiglia and fully placed in the past, Vietnam is finally beginning to fill in some gaps when it comes to Jack's military service and his relationship with brother Nicky. There was a lot to process, so here are six key things you might have missed. This content is imported from [embed-name]. You may be able to find the same content in a different format, or you may be able to find more information on their site. NBC Kevin contacted a man named Mr. Robinson last week, seeking information about Jack. Tonight we met a young Don Robinson (Mo McRae), a soldier who served alongside Jack in Vietnam and shared a relationship with him with some benign rivalry. As soon as Don started talking about his post-Vietnam dreams of playing major league baseball, you had to know something terrible was coming, and we're not sure we'd ever recover from the sight of Jack handing Don his severed foot.2. The wounded soldier Jack was holding in the season premiere wasn't Nicky.When Rebecca asks Jack about the war on their first date and he downplays how awful it was telling her he was 'just a mechanic', we saw a quick glimpse of bloodied Jack holding someone in his arms. Since the shot came just before he mentioned Nicky, many viewers assumed we were seeing a glimpse of his brother's death scene. But this episode includes a full version of that moment, which sees Jack hold Don after he loses his foot. Which means we have no idea how Nicky's going to die, or if Jack's going to be there with him when he does, or even if he's really dead. If there's one thing we've been taught this, it's that we're questioning everything!3. Don was the one who taught Jack how to breathe. One of the most moving recurring motifs throughout the series was Jack teaching Randall how to breathe through his panic attacks - remember the scene that clenched his bowels when Randall did the same for William in his moments of dying? Surprisingly, Jack didn't learn that technique from his own father. Instead, he was taught by Don, who (despite having just lost a limb) takes a moment to comfort Jack while he needs to be medically evacuated. You're scared, Pearson, Don tells Jack, asking if he's ever tired of acting like he's not. In response, Don puts his hand on the side of Jack's face and tells him to breathe, telling him sometimes we're so scared we're going to die, we forget to do what keeps us alive. Jack obviously carried it with him, and years later he taught it to his son. That was so emotional! Nbc Jack wasn't drafted, but he volunteered to be with Nicky. Jack had a medical exemption that meant he avoided the draft (more on that in seconds), but Nicky's number showed up. Jack has always been incredibly protective of his younger brother – Nicky only calls himself Lois Lane Jack's Superman – and so immediately comes to the plan for Nicky to go to Canada to avoid going to war. But on the way, Nicky slipped out of their motel room in the middle of the night, leaving a note explaining that he wouldn't run away from the draft. It's my turn to save the day, he writes. But Nicky still needs a lifeline, at least as far as Jack is concerned. A letter arrives from Nicky stating that he is not doing well in Vietnam – he is disciplined and writes troubling phrases such as I know I am not coming out of this place alive – and so Jack must go and find him. I just need to be where he is, even if I can't get to him, he tells his doctor. Even if there's nothing I can do for him, I just need to be there. He's my little brother. My job is to take care of him. Jack had a long history of heart problems before his sudden death. As we all know painfully well so far, it wasn't the house fire that directly killed Jack, but the heart attack caused by smoke inhalation. And as it turned out, there were warning signs. Jack has had tachycardia (an abnormally fast pulse) since he was a kid, and it was heavy enough to take him out of the draft. Jack downplays the condition as harmless when he decides to report, but his doctor is clearly concerned. Jack's father wasn't always a monster. NBC This was a pleasant surprise, because Stanley Pearson was quite the villain on one note throughout most of the series. On the one hand, this episode offered much more painful details about how offensive Hie was to his wife and children, making it clear that his violence is a big part of why Jack is so protective of Nicky. There was also a brutal scene in which Mama Marilyn, Jack and Nicky, greeted the postman with a very visible bruise over his eye. He wasn't always like that, Marilyn tells her sons, after they both intervene to physically protect her from Stanley. And it's true: in a flashback to the day Nicky was born, Stanley was sweet and supportive, offering fatherly advice to Jack in the waiting room. The appearance of Stanley's own father, zucchini in hand, foreshadows some of his demons—yet you have to wonder what on god happened in the next two decades to turn him into such a horrible man. One YouTube commenter said what we all think: This could be the best five minutes of my life. How many episodes will there be in season 11? From now on, it sounds like we can expect between 18 and 22 episodes in the final season. Based on the sucrator Christopher Lloyd, it sounds like there's still plenty of writers in mind for the Dunphy-Pritchett-Tucker clan. From our point of view, we got creatively excited writing this season and changing the lives of characters—some in significant it made us think, 'Wow, there's a lot to explore in these characters' lives,' he told Entertainment Weekly.
