Upcoming cartoon tv shows 2020

Update: After the huge showing on the Disney Investor Day livestream, we now have details of several new Star Wars shows, along with a number of teasing for Marvel's upcoming TV lineup. Read on to find out more! Disney Plus has come a long way since its launch back in November 2019, and its future is only going to be brighter from here. With a huge lineup of TV shows and movies in the pipeline, from features like Marvel, Star Wars and Pixar, Disney Plus has secured its place in streaming home to original blockbuster entertainment. We have taken the liberty of rounding everything that is coming to Disney Plus 2020 and beyond. Below you will find a list of Disney Plus's best upcoming TV shows and movies, with a brief description of each title. Haven't you ordered Disney Plus yet? Become a member now by clicking on one of the options below. Mandalorian: Season 3 (TV Series - Returns to 2021)*Mandalorian: Season 2 is over, but now it's time to watch toward a third season. We can expect a big shake up of the overall storyline, with the main theme that ran the first two seasons, which are now officially linked. Obi-Wan Kenobi (TV Series - release date: 2021) After years of speculation, Ewan McGregor will once again don Jedi robes to play Obi Wan Kenobi in the brand new Star Wars series Disney Plus! Originally set to begin shooting this August, McGregor has since confirmed that filming for the upcoming Obi Wan Kenobi series has been pushed back until at least January 2021. According to the actor, the series' release date probably won't affect the delay. In the latest news, it has also been announced that Hayden Christensen will return to the Star Wars universe series, presumably to play Darth Vader without his helmet. Andor (TV Series - release date: TBA) Recognition of Rogue One: A Star Wars Story has grown exponentially in the years since its release, making the prospect of a prequel series after the rebellion of spy Cassian Andor (Diego Luna) and his smart aleck droid K-2SO (Alan Tudyk) so exciting. Stephen Schiff (Americans) acts as a showrunner and producer, showing a darker Star Wars show with a more espionage theme - Andor's character doesn't shoot anyone back in his introductory scene after all... (Picture credit: Lucasfilm/Disney) Ahsoka (TV Series - release date: TBA) After his fantastic appearance in Mandalorian's second season, Ahsoka Tano (Rosario Dawson) is getting her own spin-off series, which is said to be happening immediately after the events of Return of the Jedi. (Picture credit: Lucasfilm/Disney) The Book by Boba Fett (TV Series - Release Date: TBA) Revealed secretly the post-credits series that followed Mandalorian: Season 2 finale, The Book by Boba Fett follows the adventures bounty hunter (played again by Temuera Morrison) and his warrior companion Fennec (Ming-Na Wen) after their take at Jabba's Palace. Robert Rodriguez, Jon Favreau and Dave Filoni will produce the show. (Picture credit: Lucasfilm/Disney) Star Wars: Rangers of the New Republic (TV Series - release date: TBA) Yet another spin-off series, Star Wars: Rangers of the New Republic, is a new live-action Disney Plus show set at the same time as Mandalorian. If we thought about what the series is about, we'd say it's likely to follow the guys who showed up to save Mando from that giant spider in season 2. (Picture credit: Lucasfilm/Disney) Acolyte (TV Series - release date: TBA) A bold new take on the Star Wars universe, Acolyte is a female-led mystery thriller series by Leslye Headland, the showrunner of Netflix's acclaimed show The Russian Doll. Acolyte is set in the final days of High Republic. Lando (TV Series - release date: TBA) Everyone's favorite villain Lando Calrissian gets his series on Disney Plus, with Dear White People's Justin Simien acting as showrunner. It is currently unknown what era the series will be in time, or whether Donald Glover (or Billy Dee Williams, for that matter) will return to the role. Star Wars: Jedi Temple Challenge (TV Series - release date: 2020) Essentially a Star Wars-themed game show for children, star wars: Jedi Temple Challenge will see future Padawans take several attempts at Jedi principles of strength, knowledge and bravery. Best known for playing Jar Jar Binks, actor Ahmed Best will host the show, which was announced to arrive on Disney Plus sometime in 2020. Star Wars: The Bad Batch (TV Series - release Date: 2020) the follow-up to Star Wars: The Clone Wars, this new CG-animated show by producer Dave Filoni will follow Bad Batch, an elite team of experimental clones that appeared throughout the original show. Star Wars: The Bad Batch is said to be taking place after the end of Clone War. Willow (TV Series - release Date: TBA) Willow, a classic '80s fantasy movie producer george lucas and director Ron Howard, is to become a TV series sequel that is only available on Disney Plus. Original star Warwick Davis returns as Willow Ufgood with Ron Howard, who will produce, while John M. Chu (Crazy Rich Asians) is to be targeted as a pilot. MarvelWandaVision (TV Series - release Date: January 15, 2021) Scheduled to be the first live-action MCU series to hit Disney Plus, WandaVision looks set to be one of Marvel Studios' stranger offerings (even more than Doctor Strange). Styled like the classic sitcom persuaded by I Love Lucy, the first trailer for WandaVision seems to suggest that the two Avengers are trapped in an alternative reality. Marvel 616 (TV Series - release Date: November 20, 2021) In a documentary series that explores how the Marvel Universe has influenced our lives from a historical, cultural and social point of view, Marvel 616 will see a diverse group of filmmakers tell eight unique stories about what Marvel means to them. The series lands on Disney Plus on November 20. The Falcon and the Winter Soldier (TV Series - release Date: 2021) Anthony Mackie (Falcon) and Sebastian Stan (Winter Soldier) will reprise their roles at least once again in Falcon and Winter Soldier, a six-part miniseries that is expected to deal with the Falcon taking the mantle of Captain America. Daniel Brühl and Emily VanCamp are also set to return as Zemo and Sharon Carter respectively. Loki (TV Series - release date: 2021) Reportedly after god mischief, when he influences various events throughout Earth's history, Loki is another six-part miniseries that is expected to hit Disney Plus sometime in 2021. Tom Hiddleston, of course, returned as a titular character, and is joined by the likes of Richard E. Grant, Gugu Mbatha-Raw and Owen Wilson. (Image credit: Disney) She-Hulk (TV Series - release date: TBA) a recent report placed Tatiana Maslany (Orphan Black) in the lead role of Jennifer Walters, better known as She-Hulk, but Maslany has since debunked the news, meaning the series could still be out for a while. However, we can't wait to see what Marvel Studios is doing with the character. (Image credit: Disney) Hawkeye (TV Series - release date: 2021-2022) Jeremy Renner returns to Clint Barton aka Hawkeye, but the show will reportedly focus more on fan-favorite character Kate Bishop, who will take the mantle of Hawkeye after Barton's retirement. Bishop plays Hailee Steinfeld (Bumblebee, True Grit) in series. Ms. Marvel (TV Series - release date: 2021-2022) Having just made a big impression on the recent Marvel's Avengers video game, Ms. Marvel is set to get her own series on Disney Plus in the not-too-distant future. Newcomer Iman Vellani has been cast as the lead role of Kamala Khan, while Bisha K. Ali (Sex Education) acts as showrunner. (Image credit: Disney) Marvel's What If...? (TV Series - release date: 2021) The upcoming animated anthology series, which deals with hypothetical situations, Marvel's What If...? examines what would happen if some of the MCU's biggest moments had been different - perhaps because of some unforeseen circumstances. Hosted by Jeffrey Wright (Westworld), the series already boasts a massively impressive voice cast filled with stars from the MCU, including Chris Hemsworth, Tom Hiddleston, Josh Brodin, Mark Ruffalo, Sebastian Stan, Paul Rudd, Natalie Portman and even the late Chadwick Boseman in their final performance of Black Panther. (Image credit: Disney) Moon Knight (TV Series - Release Date: 2022) Announced at Disney's D23 Expo back in 2019, Moon Knight is definitely one of the wildest characters to join the MCU so far. The comic follows Marc Spector, a former U.S. Marine and CIA spook turned mercenary who stumbles upon the idol of the Egyptian moon god Khonshu and is given moon-based powers, yes, and he's got a number of personalities. Disney/Pixar Disney and Pixar's Soul (TV Series - release date: December 25, 2020) Originally set for theatrical release back in June, the ongoing Covid-19 situation means that Disney and Pixar's Soul now launch exclusively on Disney Plus Christmas Day - there is no bad holiday gift if you ask us! Soul follows a jazz musician named Joe (Jamie Foxx) who takes one wrong step and comes to the Great Before, a place where new souls develop their personalities and interests before the birth of the earth. Thanks to a young soul named 22 (Tina Fey), Joe is doing everything he can to get back to his home. (Picture credit: Pixar/Disney) Disney and Pixar's Lightyear (TV Series - release date: TBA) surprise announcement during Disney's Investor's Day livestream, Pixar's Lightyear gives us Buzz Lightyear origins of sorts, but not a toy. Instead, the film follows the real-life astronaut that inspired buzz lightyear action character, with Chris Evans (Captain America) voicing this particular iteration of Lightyear. (Image credit: Disney) Monsters at Work (TV Series - release date: TBA) Follow-up to the original Monsters Inc., Disney and Pixar's upcoming series Monsters at Work to pick up six months after the events of the first film, new monster Tylor Tuskmon (Ben Feldman) working on a new and improved power plant that now harnesses energy for children's laughter instead of their screams. Billy Crystal and John Goodman are set to return as Mike and Sully respectively. Chip 'n' Dale (Movie - release date: TBA) Reportedly a live-action take (with CGI lead characters) on the beloved late '30s Saturday morning cartoon, Disney Plus's upcoming Chip 'n' Dale movie apparently directed by Akiva Schaffer (Hot Rod), known as one-third of the Lonely Island comedy group, which also includes Andy Sandberg and Jorma Taccone. Flora & Ulysses (TV Series - release date: TBA) adaptation of beloved children by author Kate DiCamillo and illustrator KG Campbell, Flora & Ulysses follows Flora Belle Buckman, a girl who befriends a squirrel with superpowers after her parents divorce. The Big Shot (TV Series - Release Date: TBA) In this 10-episode series, David E. Kelley (Ally McBeal, Practice) and Dean Lorey (Harley Quinn), John Stamos (Full House) plays a temperamental college basketball coach who gets fired and takes a job coaching at elite private high school girls. Untitled Lizzie McGuire sequel series (TV Series - release Date: TBA) Lizzie McGuire (Hilary Duff) is back in this adult revival that sees the title character, now 30 old, making a living in New York. Original show creator Terri Minsk also returns. The World According to Jeff Goldblum: Season 2 (TV Series - Release Date: TBA) If ever we need a dose of Jeff Goldblum's endless positivity, it is now. Fortunately, the second season of The World, according to Jeff Goldblum, a show in which curious Goldblum learns the themes that fascinate him, is in the works, although we don't know when it will arrive. Cinema Relics: The Iconic Art of the Movies (TV Series - release date: TBA) Here are one of the movie buffs out there: Cinema Relics: The Iconic Art of the Movies, an anthology series that offers a look at the props and costumes of classic Disney movies, including Mary Poppins, Pirates of the Caribbean and more. I can't believe you did this. Connect (TV Series - release date: TBA) upcoming reality series in which each episode sees a specialized expert trying to bring together a family that has drifted onto one reason or another, making them face their own issues head-on. The Landkeepers (TV Series - release date: TBA) In this upcoming documentary series by the makers of Chef's Table, Amanda Knox and The Five Came Back, we follow the number of conservationists and animals they are studying. Ink & Paint (TV Series - release date: TBA) original documentary series Disney Plus. Ink & Paint; Paint the deepening history of female roles in Disney animation over eight episodes, highlighting the work of women in films such as Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs and Coco. The Quest (TV Series - release date: TBA) The first of two Disney Plus shows by the creators of Amazing Race, Quest is a revival of ABC's 2014 series of the same name, in which teenage contestants enter into an emerging drama in a fantasy setting called Everrealm. Maze (TV Series - release date: TBA) The second Disney Plus series by the makers of Amazing Race is once again competitive, only this time the contestants have to solve Escape Room-style puzzles and clues across all over European cities. Cities.
