QS World University & Business School Rankings Committed to rigorous integrity, undeniable value, and accessible presentation, QS strives to be the most reliable independent source of global intelligence in the higher education sector. QS World University and Business School RankingsBhavesh2020-07-08T09:18:45+01:00 Featuring nearly 250 business schools, this year's full-time MBA rankings provide a comprehensive list of the best places to study for the MBA. Two U.S. business schools share the honor of topping this year's rankings, with last year's number one business school Stanford joining Wharton in first place. Wharton has improved its score of entrepreneurial & alumni results this year, one of five indicators used to compile rankings. You can read more about the methodology here. This year's results can be viewed by region, as shown below. The global chart dominates U.S. business schools, with half of the top 10 based in the United States. One of these schools is MIT Sloan. When asked about the performance this year, a school spokesman said: Thought leadership is ingrained in MIT culture. MIT has 78 Nobel Laureates, and our faculty is exploring some of today's most relevant and pervasive initiatives. What do you think of this year's rankings? Tweet us @TopUnis and let us know! Featuring nearly 250 business schools, this year's full-time MBA rankings provide a comprehensive list of the best places to study for an MBA. This year, Stanford University is rising to number one, which has risen three seats since last year. This increase is largely due to the school's performance in entrepreneurship and alumni results, one of the five indicators used to compile the ranking. You can read more about the methodology here. This year's results can be viewed by region, as shown below. While Stanford comes out on top in the US, London Business School is number one in Europe. When asked what makes the LBS MBA unique, recruitment director David Simpson said: Our MBA stands out in three ways. Selects the program length with flexible exit points for 15, 18, or 21 months. Customize your curriculum with personalized basic courses and new and exciting optional options. And you take advantage of the opportunities of a live experience in business management at global locations from New York to Mumbai, through our Global Business Experiences, Tours and Exchanges. Discover the QS Global MBA Rankings 2021 While no rankings may be final, we've looked at more data points than ever before while compiling the QS Global MBA Rankings 2021, in order to get the most comprehensive rankings on the market. The Global MBA Rankings 2021 highlight the best MBA programs around the world. We ranked 258 programs this year in 40 countries and much more were analyzed. This makes it a ranking of the highest ranking accredited international MBA programs in the world. The data were collected in early 2020 on the basis of three surveys; the QS Global Employer Survey, the QS Global Academic Survey and the survey completed by business schools. The survey carried out by schools covered quantitative indicators such as graduate salaries, class profile and other institutional data. For the purpose of a global MBA ranking in 2021, QS did not ask schools to examine their alumni. Instead, schools provided career advancement information on their alumni in line with MBACSEA standards. The resulting based on the 2019 graduate class (e.g. info) and incoming 2019 class composition. When this data was not available, we used the most recent data available from schools. In some cases, we have used publicly available information to confirm our accuracy and completeness. To be included in the Global MBA Rankings 2021, the program must be taught primarily on campus (i.e. not distance learning), must be taught full-time (or full-time equivalent) and have an average class size of at least 15 students. All schools must be accredited by the AACSB, the AMBA, the EFMD (EQUIS). We also require schools to provide adequate data in the majority of indicators (see FAQ). A total of 13 criteria form the basis of the five key indicators on which the programmes were ranked: employability, entrepreneurship and alumni results, return on investment, thought management and class - faculty diversity. QS Global MBA Rankings 2021 Breakdown of employability - 40% enterprise and alumni results - 15% return - 20% Thought Leadership - 15% Department & Faculty diversity - 10% employability QS Global Employer Survey (35%) The backbone of the rankings is the QS Global Employer Survey, which asks employers to select schools they prefer to hire. The survey has been in operation for more than 20 years. Between 2016 and 2020, we collected hundreds of thousands of university and business school nominations from nearly 40,000 global employers to the QS Global Employer Survey. Schools have the opportunity to contribute to the survey by appointing up to 400 employers to take on graduates. More responses have received the most weight in this ranking. Employers in all sectors and industries participate in the survey and include Facebook, Google, Uber, Wells Fargo, Bank of America, etc. The survey helps us make an accurate impression on the reputation of a school compared to peers among relevant employers who are hiring an MBA. Employment rate (5%) The overall score of this indicator also takes into account the employment rate of students, three months after graduation, based on MBACSEA standards. The average rate of ranking this year is 84% enterprise and alumni results (15%) Alumni results (10%) The Alumni Outcomes Index examines schools associated with more than 50,000 CEOs, executives and board members of the world's largest companies, including Apple, Amazon, UBS, IBM, Microsoft, JPMorgan Chase, ExxonMobil, AT&T, PepsiCo. This year we have some of the most successful entrepreneurs using crunchbase database. Schools do not directly provide QS information to alumni. QS collects and validates it from publicly available sources. Schools may recommend qs Unis's possible lists of successful companies/alumni to improve the quality of the survey. Entrepreneurship (5%) Reflect Reflect a growing trend of students interested in creating their own companies for post-graduation, we also take this action in the global MBA Ranking. Schools themselves report this number according to MBACSEA standards. The average proportion of entrepreneurs in the rankings this year is 5%. Return on investments (20%) We used a number of data points to determine the return on investment, which is often one of the most difficult metrics that can be accurately predicted with many permutations and options. 10-year return (15%) We looked at the 10-year return, mapping the average post-MBA salaries for average salaries before enrollment, taking into account lost salary, as well as tuition and living expenses (using Mercer Quality City Living Ranking). Pay rises are included in both pre-MBA and subsequent pay, with the latter growing at a higher rate than expected. Schools receive a graded bonus for the number of entrepreneurs produced that account for a slower but potentially much higher return for those looking for a business. We also consider what percentage of graduates accept the job within three months of completing their studies. 10 years gives a representative and meaningful return on investment insights compared to some rankings that use the five-year approach. This methodology did not include loans or scholarships. We acknowledge that no ROI calculation is perfect, but we believe that with the available data we have come up with the best approximate ROI calculation. Month of return (5%) We'll see how long it takes to pay back the costs. The shorter the payback month, the better the score the school gets. The average time this year is about 3.5 years. Thought Leadership (15%) QS academic reputation (10%) This metric gives us an accurate impression of the reputation of the MBA programme and is based on university and business school nominations from around the world between 2016 and 2020. Academics name the institutions that are considered the strongest on the subject. The survey has grown into the world's largest surveys of scientific opinion, and in size and scope, is an unparalleled tool for measuring sentiment in the scientific community. This year, nearly 35,000 scientific responses were used in the analysis. Research effect (2.5%) Scopus - We use Elsevier's Scopus database to assess the research intensity of schools. We look at the period 2014-2019 and analyse thousands of studies. Percentage of arms with PhD (2.5%) We look at the percentage of the faculty of the Business School with a doctoral degree. The average percentage this year is 85%. Class & Faculty Diversity (10%) In order to clearly represent diversity within a programme, we examined the percentage of female students and teachers. We also examined whether international percentage of school, and the international mix of students in the MBA program. The averages we see this year are: Percentage of women in the classroom: 39.8% Number of nationalities in the classroom: 17% international faculty: 36% of women in the business school faculty: 32% FAQ Q) How are currency exchange rates calculated? A) Currency exchange rates are accurate from 1.1.2020, while salaries in reputational surveys have been converted on the basis of the average for the years in question. Conversion rates fluctuate, and we take that into account in our calculations. Q) When I compare the QS Ranking to other popular rankings I find some big differences in A) Each ranking has its own methodology. 45% of global MBA Ranking is based on reputation, which many other rankings do not measure this accurately. Q) How is the data validated? A) All data received from schools have been subject to verification checks, including, where possible, comparisons with historical data, co-schools and other published sources. QS reserves the right to modify the data for a more accurate source. Employer/study questionnaires have been checked for multiple or false entries. Q) What happens if a school has not provided all the necessary data? A) If the data was not provided (a smaller portion of schools), QS surveys such as the QS Global Employer Survey and the QS Global Academic Survey were used in co-research into publicly available QS data for accurate estimation. Resources include, for example, school employment reports and class profiles. Q) If a school did not provide data, how can I be sure that the information used was accurate? A) The information used in these cases has been compared with a number of sources and verified as closely as possible to make an accurate estimate. Resources include, for example, school employment reports and class profiles. Q) How does weighting fairly apply to an overall score? A) We use Z-scores to ensure that data is reliably combined to create an accurate and fair overall ranking. Q) Why do you miss the schools you can count on? A) Schools are excluded if they do not meet the necessary criteria to be present in the rankings if the program was too new or there was insufficient data. In addition, we only accept business schools that have received DACSB, EFMD or AMBA accredited or 3+ Stars in the prestigious QS Stars audit. Q) Why are some ranks missing? A) Following publication, QS was called on from some schools that were not eligible for the ranking. We removed the programs from the rankings, but the other schools remain in the initial position. Q) We are a business school and want to participate in the next ranking. What do we have to do? A) Contact the protected] to find out and ask any other questions about the ranking. Q) Which other programs do I know We recommend that you visit each program's profile page to learn more about how to contact schools. Q) Where can I see the cost of the programmes? We recommend that you visit each program's profile page to learn more about how to contact schools. Q) Why don't you display all the ranking data used? We will try to do this in the future. Currently, the rankings are ranked on their own. Q) I would like to specialisation in a certain type of MBA. How do I use your ranking? Please read the QS MBA rankings by specialization. Specialization.
