By betty Jean Steinshouer Taijin Karaoke system allows you to add scrap songs you like, so you never feel stuck singing the same song over and over again. Of course, you might want to keep your beloved songs while you learn new songs. You can add songs either by subscrening the monthly service or by downloading the track you want. Depending on the age of your karaoke system, you may be able to use an LAN or USB connection. You can also order a CD that will allow you to manually add a selection of Karaoke Taijin system songs. Find the cable that includes your Karaoke Taijin system. If it resembles a large phone plug, you have a LAN connection. Make sure it is plugged into a karaoke machine. Find the LAN port on your computer. Again, it will resemble a large phone port. Install the LAN cable into this portal to download songs from the Internet to your Karaoke Taijin. If your cable has an advanced and silver connection with a USB symbol on it, ship it into one of the USB ports on your computer instead of the LAN port. Each computer or laptop has at least two USB ports. This is the same type of cable you'll use to download photos from the camera or upload songs to an iPod or MP3 player. Make sure the USB cable is connected between your Karaoke Taijin system and your computer. Your computer will recognize it and ask what you want to do. If it gives you the option to upload a song, click that. Otherwise, it needs to take you to the Taijin website to add a song. Once you reach taijin website, find the Download or Update button. Click to add a song to your Karaoke Taijin system. Some older systems may require you to first store music on your computer, as you would with an iPod or MP3 player, and then upload songs from the Taijin site to your karaoke system.
