Điện thoại: 094 11 44 666 Website: I am an audiophile who loves house music, jazz, classic, deep vocal rhythms and classic rock and hip-hop albums. For the purposes of this best headphone review I compared my recently purchased Crossfade M-100 V-Modades with my 5-year-old HD280PROs Sennheiser and borrowed my sister's Beats from Dre and my dad's Bose headphones. V-MODA Crossfade M-100 vs Sennheiser HD280PROs vs Beats by Dre vs Bose Headphones Review The Crossfade M-100 V-MODA Headphones (Amazon) have the best packaging and case. My background in headphones /listening: I dj-ed on the radio in college and I have been an audiophile for at least a decade, great on vinyl and constantly listening to new music and trying to expand my appreciation for different genres. If I had to choose a single track to test the headphones, it must be Money For Nothing by Dire Straits. That said, this best headphone review will use the speech of the layman because I'm not a headphone expert. I don't know all the different lingos and terminology of headphones, but I know what I like and what most non-experienced music fans are looking for in a pair of headphones. What are the best cans (headphones) on the market? I'm not comparing headphones at any price, instead this headphone review focuses on different prices and compares the most popular headphones on the market: when I was comparing each of these headphones, I focused on their noise cancellation properties and noise loss, the comfort of headphones on the head, portability, bass, voice, texture and layers, durability and how the headphones look (style doesn't matter, but I know it does to some people). I performed many songs different from the entire genre range through each of these headphones: EDM, indie rock, hip hop, classic, rock, country, jazz, live music, metal and pop. I throw some music tips out there. Not only do you take a look at the videos here on this review page, click and listen to everything (especially if you have a pair of headphones you're testing). You'll know most of these songs, but if you don't know anything you have an obligation as a music lover to listen. I don't want to play alone here, but I'm trying to save your life - this is MUSIC. It's serious business, man. The best songs to test headphones: if you had to choose a single song to test headphones and stereo systems, it should be Money For Nothing by Dire Straights. A close second Bohemian Rhapsody. After that, make your choice. How much do different headphones cost? These are all at the time of writing (2019), but there are several deals on these all the time via Amazon: V-Moda Crossfade M-100 - $240 (Amazon) Sennheiser HD280PRO - $100 (Amazon) Bose (exact unsafe model) - $300 (Amazon) Beats by Dre - $250 (Amazon) Beats by Dre Headphones Review Are They Beats of Comfortable Dre Headphones? Honestly Beats by Dre are not comfortable at all. The beats are too small for my head and the auricles are tiny - they don't even come close to covering my ears and seem to cut the circulation at the top and bottom of my ears. Beats by Dre good quality headphones? The sound quality of Beats by Dre headphones is actually ridiculous. If I had bought the Beats myself, I would be extremely and return them immediately. Even without first listening to some tracks through better headphones like the Sennheisers, Bose and V-Modas, I knew the Beats were crappy headphones. It's basically as if someone had just taken budget earbuds and wrapped uncomfortable wrappers around them. The beats are marketed to those who like tracks with some bass, hip-hop, rap, RnB and the whole genre. But honestly they don't even do it well. Maybe if someone didn't know anything about the music and never tried good headphones, it might fool someone, but for the price you'd expect it to actually make the music look half decent and they just don't. Why do people buy Beats by Dre? It's a status symbol thing from people who don't know anything better. Everyone knows beats cost a couple hundred dollars, so wearing them is a way to prove that you have... a couple hundred dollars to fall into his headphones. I don't understand status purchases. I don't understand people who like that shit. My V-Fashions cost the same as Beats (a little less actually) and in my opinion look better and make the music look amazing, plus they're comfortable. Why pay the same price for a hugely lower pair of cans? I guess people also think Beats looks good, but they really don't. I much prefer the elegant look of the V-Modas. After playing with the Beats for thirty minutes for the purposes of this headphone review, I couldn't wait to take them off and listen with some decent headphones. Swapping beats for V-Modas is like going from a girl who thinks she's hot shit, but she's actually a basic bitch who doesn't know how to move around the bedroom to a stylish woman you can take to upscale restaurants who actually knows how to please her man. If the Beats were a car, it would be a Suped-up Vauxhall Astra. You can take a look at other of Beats by Dre headphones here. Bose headphone review Bose headphones are comfortable? Bose headphones are the most comfortable headphones of all these. They do not cover the completely, but Bose has real luxurious padding and a way of sitting on your head that makes you feel like you're not wearing anything. Bose are fetherlite condoms in the headphone world. You'd think because of how gently Bose headphones sit on your head and why they don't swallow your ear that Bose wouldn't be great at clearing the noise, but you'd be surprised. Comfort does not sacrifice sound quality. Looks like you're really in the room with a live show. If comfort is your first concern with headphones, grab a pair of Bose because they are the most comfortable headphones. Is Bose a good headset? Bose aren't marketed for those who want a lot of bass, and they're definitely not for bass heads, but they do a much better job of low rendering than the Beats. They look more organic and smoother, while the Beats sound like a shitty sub-woofer with which a punk mounted his red Citroen C2. Bose might just be the Bentley of the headphone world, although they don't actually give the best sound from all these headphones in this review. You can check out other Bose headphone reviews here. Sennheiser HD280PRO Headphone Review I had this pair of Sennheisers for five years. It's only the other day that one of the headphones gave in and stopped playing music. I traveled with these Sennheisers, crushed them at the bottom of my backpack, threw them around, were super inattentive to them and endured so well. For durability, the Sennheiser HD280PRO is a great headset. Are the Sennheiser HD280PRO headphones comfortable? I've seen some reviews say the Sennheisers are tight, but I think they're extremely comfortable. It's a cozy but comfortable fit. I love the way headphones completely cover my ears, which makes them superior to noise cancellation. The padding is super comfortable. Although Bose headphones are higher for comfort, sennheisers are a very close second and I actually prefer them due to the fact that they cover the entire ear. Maybe it sounds silly, but the Sennheisers make me feel safe. You can also comfortably rest the Sennheisers around your neck when you don't use them, while V-Modas are tight around your neck. The Sennheiser 280HDRO are the best noise cancelling headphones Traveling by coach or economy class immediately feels like you've moved on to first class when you put on the Sennheisers. I can't imagine traveling without them. For portability, they are very large and take up a lot of space, plus the cable is super long, which can be frustrating, but I had 12 hour red-eyed flights that I really enjoyed because I felt like I was in a movie theater watching my movie or at a concert listening to my music. And the sennheisers over the ear with nothing play stuck the noise of of air engines and kids crying so well that I was actually able to get some closed eye (super rare for me on planes). How does music play through the Sennheisers? The music sounds amazing through the Sennheisers. Their price plus comfort and the fact that they are so good at erasing noise makes them the superior choice of headphones, but for the quality of the music they come in second place at V-Modas. Sennheisers are infinitely better than Beats for a fraction of the price. If Sennheiser were a car, it would be the Range Rover of the headphone world. You can check out other reviews for sennheiser 280HDPRO headphones here. V-MODA Crossfade M-100 Headphones Review I saved the best, my favorite headphones in this review, lastly: the Crossfade M-100 V-MODA headphones. Are the V-MODA Crossfade M-100 headphones comfortable? The V-MODA Crossfade M-100 headphones are a bit too small for my ears (which are big and I have a big head) when compared to the Sennheiser which I think are super spacious. I'm still comfortable despite this and could take the extra large earbuds, but it's not a big deal for me and I still get effortlessly lost in the music and can wear them for hours. The Modas are luxuriously comfortable compared to the Beats, but lose in comfort when it comes to the Sennheisers and Bose. They do it in the area that matters most to many people: sound quality. Are the V-MODA Crossfade M-100s headphones good? No. V-Modas are not good headphones. They're going crazy about the amazing headphones. When it comes to music quality, V-Modas beat all other headphones in this hands-down headset review. That doesn't mean Bose and Sennheiser aren't great – they're still great – but the V-Modas are simply far superior in terms of music. If you want headphones that really allow you to appreciate different levels and textures in music, headphones that make it look like you're actually at the concert when you're listening to live music, headphones that do bass artfully, headphones that feature crispy voice, headphones that are masterfully designed on the audio front, then the V-Modas are the clear winner. With V-Modas, it's like you're listening in HD. If I want to make long-distance trips on a plane, the Sennheisers will be my first choice. If comfort is my main deciding factor, it is divided between Bose and Sennheiser, but I would give Sennheiser the advantage. But if I want to be a music critic, if I want to sit down and put my favorite album or a new album that I was looking forward to all year round and want to get lost in music and appreciate music, I'll choose V-Moda every time. The V-MODA Crossfade M-100 are warm, elegant, intimate, fun and understand music. There's a reason to V-Modas are the best of world-class DJs. They're just superb. They are also great for broadcasters and podcasters with a very stylish built-in microphone. V-Modas are the Ferrari of the world of headphones. You can check out other Reviews of V-MODA Crossfade M-100 here. V-MODA Crossfade M-100 vs Bose Headphones Reviewed I had my family compare between v-modas and boses. I tried to get them compared to the Beats, but like my mother said, We don't need to do that, we already know I'm naff. And as my father said, People only want Beats because football players wear them. When they compared bose headphones to V-Modas, they were immediately blown away. Like me, my mother noticed that you can hear more things with V-Modas. That's true. I've heard details in my favorite songs, songs I've heard hundreds of times, that I've never heard before. What a delight. It's like finding an Easter egg when you hear details in songs you've never heard before. And my dad was so impressed that he immediately said he would buy his couple so he could appreciate the music while doing the backyard work. So what are the best ranked headphones? From the headphones I reviewed, classify the best headphones like this: 1st best headphones: Crossfade M-100 V-Moda (Amazon) 2nd best headphones: Sennheiser 280HDPRO (Amazon) 3rd best headphones: Bose (Amazon) 4th best headphones: Beats by Dre (Amazon) What headphones do you recommend? Let me know in the comments below. And leave me musical advice: which music sounds great through a pair of high-quality headphones? Headphones?
