Pictured: Luke Harold's Vicky Commons takes a lot of work to be considered one of the greatest basketball players in NBA history, but Koby Bryant was willing to put it up to date. Copyright © 2020 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, a System1 Company LeBron James has been regarded by many people as one of the greatest basketball players of all time. He has been playing at the N.B.A. for years and has been talking about it for years. While many basketball fans are familiar with his on-court career, many people may know exactly how old he is. If you'd like to learn more about the legendary LeBron James, read below to learn more about his life and career. LeBron James' Early Age and Early Life of LeBron James | Jason Miller/Getty Images James was born on December 30, 1984, which means he will turn 35 in 2019. He grew up in Akron, Ohio, in a lower-class family. His mother had him when he was 16 while his father was convicted and mostly absent in young James' life. James and his mother moved a lot to live with different people as children. However, when James was 9, his mother realized that his son would be better in a more stable family, so he allowed her to live with Frank Walker and his family. Walker — a local sports coach — introduced James to basketball. Then James started playing basketball for the Northeast Ohio Shooting Stars, a team at the Amateur Sports Union (AAU). When he reached high school, he joined the basketball team in St. Vincent-St. mary high school . LeBron James joined the N.B.A. in 2003, James was selected to join the Cleveland Cavaliers at the age of 19. Given his great reputation now, James was actually the first player to be selected at that year's N.B.A. Inf. James played for the Cavaliers for about seven years and proved himself one of the league's best players. He gained numerous recognitions during his time with the Cavaliers, including six NBA All-Star Game picks and three NBA All-Star MVP awards. James left the Cavaliers to join the Miami Heat in 2010. The decision drew a backlash from fans who felt James was abandoning his hometown team. Despite the fact that James was mischievous in the press, he's still To win two NBA championships with the Miami Heat and still every year he was selected for the NBA All-Star Game. After four years with heath, James left and re-joined the Cleveland Cavaliers. In the 2015-2016 season, James led the team to win the title -- something Cleveland City had not seen in 52 years. Yet James was only with the Cavaliers for four years. He terminated his contract in 2018 and joined the Los Angeles Lakers. Aside from being a big star in the N.B.A., James' presence around the world has also been felt. He has joined Team USA in three Olympic Games and has won two gold medals and one bronze. He has also participated in the FIBA world championships and FIBA Americas Championships. LeBron James' net worth is only in his mid-30s, but he has had a very successful career and an impressive bank account. James' current net worth is estimated at $440 million to $450 million, but he has the potential to make $1 billion during his entire career. Being a widely known athlete, much of James' money comes from his contracts with N.B.A. teams, and approval deals with brands like Nike and McDonald's. While he can absolutely survive with money only from these two sources, James also makes money from his own investments. He has invested in companies such as Blaze Pizza and Beats Music. If you read Inc. to improve your leadership, LeBron James may have its disadvantages, as any leader does, but remain a model role model. As a leadership professor, coach, and writer, I suggest looking more for learning from champion athletes than they mistelling. Let's just consider the president of the United States, the delegates, and the governors who were athletes: Dwight Eisenhower was a defensive lineman at Barack Obama's West Point who played basketball throughout his presidency, Ronald Reagan, wrestling (and talking trash with garbage) Teddy Roosevelt, out of the rugged house, saying, It's far more important that a man has to play something himself, even if he's bad. Play. Gerald Ford won the College Football Championship in John Kennedy's undefeated seasons at Harvard George H2. W. Bush played the first base in Bill Bradley's two World Series colleges, two-time New York champion Nick Bob Mathias, an Olympic athletics medalist who played in Jack Kemp's Rose Bowl 13 seasons of professional football, a bodybuilder world champion Jesse Ventura, a professional wrestler (perhaps more entertaining than the athlete) Kevin Johnson, an All Star basketball player and Olympiate, is hard to add Nelson Mandela, who boxed and sports daily. He was imprisoned for 27 years. Can anyone deny the cultural leadership of Billie Jean King, Venus and Serena And Danica Patrick? Competitive and team sports train teamwork, resilience, effort, grace, humility, and more. Playing at James' level gives the experience of running and communicating nationally and globally. Few of us can imagine the pressures of competing at that level, let alone leading multiple teams to multiple championships, and staying calm under that pressure. Even losing a championship teaches valuable leadership lessons. Such experiences give James a unique insight into national and global leadership that suggests value in his views. LeBron James is known for philanthropy, particularly helping children and education, as well as business and social services. To imply an athlete's ability to dribble, it reduces his ability to lead, sending a counter-production message especially for children, students, and aspiring leaders. That duality is incorrect not only a sport effectively teaching many valuable social and emotional skills for leadership, some difficult to learn without exercise. As Harvard's political review of sports versus education stated: a wrong choice, unlike low-cultural currents, sports participation and academic success is not mutually exclusive. Education achievable through sport can be incredibly valuable in other areas of life. Life.
