Apple fcu mobile deposit

The app worked well, but now has a ton of bugs. First, it stopped showing my screenshot, then it took a fingerprint login, now it automatically resets my password every few days—it says invalid credentials even if they are correct credentials, then I need to reset my password and start over. Plus, now it only allows 10 characters of password-how safe is k? There is no update, and if these glitches are not fixed soon, I will be switching all my accounts. He had (note the past time) over $40k in an IRA CD being there and also had regular stock accounts. I moved it all out. Their bonus rates seemed above average, but don't be fooled. Renewal rates are low and they know this, so they prevent you from getting in the way to prevent you from withdrawing funds after the initial bonus rate expires. Their paperwork nightmare and customer service troubles were just terrible. I can't find anyone who knows anything on the phone. Punch in all the account numbers and verification you want, some call center employee eventually picks up, asks you the same information you just punched into the keyboard, verifies a lot of other information, and then asks: How can I help you. Asnwer will be that they can't help you and will transfer you to someone's voicemail. Never a person who is truly available. You cannot select your own password when setting up online banking. They'll assign you one and send it to you. (Yes, sneer mail.) You can't even change it after you get sent one, you must assign a 10-character password that is tangle so you never remember. And that's what they're going to send you. (A little beats the purpose of online banking if you have to mail everything... what is the point of a secret password when I write in clear text on the post-it ...) They require you to fill out forms for everything... transfers of funds, etc. But there are no blank forms available on their website. You have to go through a poorly programmed form guide. When logging into online banking you cannot access the form wizard, you need to log out and go to the main website and run the wizard. For this reason, you must always run the wizard from scratch and manually enter your name and address and other information (gee, I already have forty thousand dollars there, you do not have people this information???) Their form guide also requires you to provide information that is not required by the IRS to fill out the form (i.e. email and phone number is not required by the IRS when transferring IRA funds, only the account holder and administrator name, address and account number – but that the Apple Federal CU guide requires you to enter the information before continuing to generate the form.) I filled out a form to raise my money - the system wouldn't generate a form for it and kept asking me what date regular annitized payments would start. Finally I played together and said to make one regular payment of 100% on the day of today. Still useless, the guide says do it. (Oh, yes, I can! Follow me!) I believe I was wasting my time on a wizard I should have just called someone, right? It happened. Useful CSR told me that the form was online, and just download it. Second call: The rep realized you had to go through the guide, and told me he couldn't help me through the guide over the phone. Third call: The rep told me I'd have to come to the branch to pick up the form. Fourth call: Finally got to a representative who noted that he did not have access to blank selection forms (really?), but he would have a person in the IRA department who would email it to me. A few hours later, it turns out, but it's a bad form. (and now it's after 17:00 so they are closed, I think I can start again tomorrow ...) Fifth challenge: I finally get the right form and it requires it to be filled out in the presence of a notary. (also something I've never had to do with other online banks or online transactions) I'd tell you what happened on the sixth and subsequent calls, but the moderator probably won't allow that type of language in the forum post. Suff let's just say it took days to quarrel over the wrong website and the inept CSR is finally getting his hands on his own money. Glad I did with Apple FCU. Never again.
