The text reads: "Rachael Ray finds inspiration in cooking her family and dog Of course the sentence is meant to mean that Rachael finds inspiration in dog, family and cooking. Instead, the phrase sounds as if Rachael likes to cook her family and dog for dinner! Good grammar can save you from such misunderstandings. Grammar includes a set of rules that you use to format sentences in any language. The rules of grammar tell you things like why you walk slowly/ (not slowly), and when to say them or them. Without grammar, it would be very difficult for people to understand each other. Learning English grammar is therefore important, but it is not always easy to start. Where can you get all the necessary information and how can you learn all the rules (and exceptions to these rules)? Well, you can start here with this list of 20 English webstes for learning grammar! Smart steps for learning English grammar Even with a list of great resources, learning will be easier to learn if you follow certain steps. 1. Goal. If you have a goal, you can create focus. Choose a specific goal for learning grammar, such as feeling comfortable for a job interview or correcting spoken errors in the past tense time. 2. Break this goal to smaller goals. Now that you know what you're trying to accomplish, you can figure out how to get there. Let's say you want to correct your past tense mistakes. First, you're going to have to figure out what those mistakes are. To do this, you can ask others to look for your mistakes when speaking, to record themselves and listen carefully, to work on past dozens that you are less familiar and more. Whatever you're doing, you should find a way to break it down into smaller parts. 3. Focus on one topic at a time. Don't try to learn everything at once. Instead, learn one rule at a time and practice, use and review that rule until you get to know it so well you can teach it to someone else. 4. Study a few minutes a day. You don't have to study for hours to learn English. All it takes is five to 10 minutes a day as long as you use them wisely. Every day you can read the grammatical rule, do some exercises and then practice it for the rest of the day. In the next few days, use this rule between writing and speaking to make sure you haven't forgotten it. Look for examples of this rule while reading, watching, or listening to something in English. Follow these steps and before you know it, you will feel much more comfortable with English grammar. LEO allows you to learn vocabulary, chat with other learners, improve your writing skills, improve the nactation, perform spelling tests... You'd even need a post to name all the great things you can do on this site. The grammar section is amazing, too, and I'm sure you'll fall in love with them, too. Each category and theme includes one to three small symbols on the right. These symbols tell you what you can do in every darkness. The notebook symbol (Read this!) means that when you click, you'll find a grammatical explanation. Grammatical explanations in the Leo network may seem quite short, but they are accurate and focused on what is important. You know you're not going to learn anything unnecessary. The Picture Symbol (Picture This!) means that when you click, you'll find cute pictures and tone cases related to the grammar theme. This is the perfect section to see the grammar in the action. Finally, the tile symbol within the circle (Try it!) means that when you click, you'll have a test or exercise so you can practice the grammar you learned. There's magic going on here, and where you can see if you really understand the subject or if you need to look at it. Which of these websites will join your bookmarks/favorites? I hope you find some sites that you are excited to start using. Don't forget to use these websites together with other English learning methods. Good luck!
