When you sign up as a strategic trader, you will receive your account number in an e-mail from us shortly after you sign up. You can also find your account number at the bottom of your weekly updates and trade notification emails. If you have an account number, you can set a user name and password. Your username is the email address you used to sign up for Strategy Trader. If you don't already need to make your username and password a user in another InvestorPlace media subscription, you don't need to create a new username for strategic traders. Existing usernames and passwords work for strategic traders as long as they are subscribers. To create a unique username and password, you need an account number and a zip code. Your account number can be found at the bottom of weekly updates and trading alerts, or in the email you received when you signed up for Strategy Trader. You can also call customer service at 1-800-219-8592 for assistance. Click here to create your username and password now. The user name and password do not work. Remember that passwords are important because they must be entered exactly how case is set. I forgot my username and password. What do I do? If you forget your username or password, you can send an email to the email address you provided when you signed up. Click here to select this option. How do I change my username and password? If you have already created a unique username and password, click here to make changes. If you haven't created a unique username and password, click here to begin the process of creating your own account. When you signed up for the service, you already sent me an email address. Why give it to you again? The e-mail you provide to us when you create your username and password will only be used to send you an email if you forget your username and password. For security, this information is kept separate from other account information, so you may have more than one email address recorded with us.
