Last time dodgers won world series 1988

The San Diego Padres reportedly acquired former Cy Young winner Blake Snell from the Tampa Bay Rays. He was last seen being pulled out of World Series Game 6. (Bloomberg) - U.S. stock futures pushed higher with most Asian shares on Monday after President Donald Trump signed a coronavirus stimulus package. The dollar ticked lower with treasury.S&P 500 contracts rose as the White House confirmed that Mr Trump approved a total $2.3 trillion Covid-19 support and government funding package. Shares advanced in Tokyo, Seoul and Shanghai. The Bloomberg Dollar Spot index dipped and Treasury yields rose. Oil was little changed and golden rose. Alibaba Group Holding Ltd is sliding in Hong Kong after its U.S. stock exchange tumbled to the most serious concern about the China investigation into alleged monopolistic practices. The company on Monday increased its share buyback program to $10 billion. Chinese regulators over the weekend ordered the branch of Ant Group Co. to return to its roots as a payment service provider, a development that threatens to clip its growth. Elsewhere, the pound has fluctuated after the UK last week curtailed a historic Brexit trade agreement with the European Union. The president previously demanded Congress increase stimulus checks to $2,000 from $600, threatening to leave the legislation in limbo. Mr Trump said in a statement announcing the signing that the GOP Senate had agreed to vote on raising $600 in individual payments. The stimulus may be to support the market to support the U.S. economy, said Suresh Tantia, strategist at Credit Suisse Group AG. Next year, all building blocks are there so that the markets can continue this rally. More restrictions have been imposed on the coronavirus front to combat the spread of a new, more infectious strain. Japan is one of the latest actions to ban entry of most foreigners by the end of January. Meanwhile, the European Union launched a continent-wide vaccination campaign less than a week after the shot developed by Pfizer Inc. and BioNTech SE was cleaned up. In cryptocurrencies, Bitcoin is constantly mobilizing during the festive break, first before withdrawing $28,000. Asian markets were mostly higher Monday as U.S. President Donald Trump signed a massive coronavirus assistance bill to boost positive sentiment despite ongoing concerns about a new strain of Covid-19.It is unclear when Carmelo Anthony will rejoin the Portland Trail Blazers. (Bloomberg) -- Oil stable in Asian trade - after posting its first weekly loss since October - as pessimism over a new strain of Covid-19 was balanced by the passage of the U.S. stimulus bill into law. Futures in New York traded near $48 a barrel after sliding 1.8% last week. Tighter restrictions have been extended to much of England to stop the virus mutation, while China has suspended passenger flights to the UK by American officials, while warning of an influx of post-Christmas infections. Crude pared previous losses after President Donald Trump signed a long-awaited bill containing $900 billion in viral relief that is expected to boost energy demand in the world's largest economy. Mr Trump has previously expressed dissatisfaction with the bill, which congress approved last week. Oil finishes the year on as the risk of short-term demand, more travel restrictions outweigh optimism about the introduction of vaccines that are already taking place and will be increase energy demand. The OPEC+ alliance will also return 500,000 barrels per day of production to the market from January. I see a very quiet market between now and the end of the year, but over the next couple of days the direction will be down on the new virus strain, said Howie Lee, economist at Oversea-China Banking Corp. As it approaches the end of the year, traders are just happy to close their books. The green future curve reflects pessimism. Brent's fast-paced time frame is 6 cents per barrel in Contang, a local market structure where prices in the near term are cheaper than later. The spread was as high as 13 cents back earlier this month. Japanese industrial production missed analysts' expectations to come unchanged last month from October, with more evidence that the revived virus is stalling the economic recovery in some parts of Asia. President Trump, meanwhile, has raised geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, accusing Iran of being responsible for a missile attack near the US Embassy in Baghdad on Sunday. The Islamic Republic's Ministry of Foreign Affairs said the claims were unfounded. The country's oil minister said this month that Iran plans to double its production in 2021, which will be met with OPEC+ efforts to gradually increase supply without market access.
