If you want to practice fantasy sports, there are app leagues to choose from. But we think ESPN Fantasy could be the MVP. Its minimal interface stays out of our way so that we can focus on draft picks, trades and managing our lineup. But the best part? ESPN has mini-stories about all the hot prospects. So the more time we spend actually using the app, the better our computer ends. Great app, they've been using it for years but this year has been terrible. The desktop version is horrible, you can't even see updates about players or any link to games or a player calendar for the week. In both the app and the desktop version, updates are late and players who are clearly injured are not listed as out until after FA transactions can be decided. That's just a few things that need fixing. NBS Fantasy is awesome, this app is fine. The live score on this app is great, and the highlights are good too. Some improvements would make it fantastic:1 - a better way to capture the team's total games for the match. (We need to count all matches up to the cap (e.g. 30 games for the week) and then abandon the lowest scoring game in that 30 if a player has a higher scoring game before the end of the week. It would make matchups closer and fairer and pull off the l have no chance as they have five more games this week. 2- Add a Fill List button (such as Yahoo)3- Add a Optimize Schedule button (such as NFL Fantasy)4- Tap the ability to switch between the Players tab and the List tab without each resetting to the default screen at a time. When we are seeing a particular set of players and we want to check our list, then we need to enter all the criteria again. 5- Add a Hide game scores option for those of us who want to see fantasy scores, but avoid the game results to see later. And we pass this information by your side, so you can become obsessed and try to win your leagues as well. The 2020-21 NBA season may have started already, but you can create or join an ESPN fantasy basketball league at any time and start your season since your team is drafted. That said, we also do our best not to forget what fantasy sports are really about: having fun with your friends, family, coworkers, and even strangers. You don't have to put big bucks into a league or have humiliating consequences for the swimwear cup loser in order to gain enjoyment. Sometimes, just grab a few people, have a quick draft, set your lineups for the week on Mondays, and get some extra enjoyment when tuning in to NBA games. With that in mind, we made a simple league draft of eight head-to-head teams points Monday, including a team that let the app automatically pick up their team. It took about 45 minutes, and as you can see, even the self-de malware team has no shortage of funny players to watch: Giannis Antetokounmpo Mil, PF Karl-Anthony Towns Min, C Ben Simmons, PG Jimmy Butler Mia, SF Already Dying Mem, PG Donovan Mitchell Utah, SG D'Angelo Russell Min, PG T.J. Warren Ind, SF Kelly C Robert Covington Por, PF Hassan Whiteside Sac, C Delon Wright Det, SGAs an added bonus, the NBA season is getting underway, so not much action has been lost. And this season, you can start your ESPN fantasy basketball leagues with a 0-0 record after your draft without using retroactive scoring at the start of the NBA campaign. If you're new to fantasy hoops, here's a tutorial of all the basics. Now go grab a bunch of people, put up a draft, and have some fun!
