For any request, suggestion or compliment you can write us to: support@rummikub-apps.com We would love to hear from you I actually purchased and set up a tablet for my grandmother for the sole purpose of being able to play this game with her grandchildren during this period since we are all socially spaced from her. If everything had been set up and working and we had got a game before we encountered the same problem that more other people in this thread mentioned about the lack of connectivity. It is sporadic and unpredictable when it can and cannot connect. While I understand that servers face and incredible load during this time, it's hard to do remote technical support for someone who has a very specific set of instructions to follow on how to play and now it looks like they're just hurting it, when it's actually a development issue that I hope can be addressed in the near future. I understand the biggest issues at hand in the world and I'm not going to let another negative element ruin this quarantine period, but I'm very disappointed that something I'm looking forward to greatly improving this time just led to further complicating it. I would like to have looked at the fact that, apparently, this has been going on for months and I have not wasted the time, money and effort I have made. I'm just taking the time to share so that maybe others will consider it. It's a fun game with classic graphics, so I gave it 4. but I don't know why you don't let yourself decide how much to bet. Sometimes you have a lot of coins and bet the minimum. Other times maybe you don't feel like you want to risk half your on a big bet and it does anyway. The second problem is that on iPad the emoticons that your opponents do cover the top of the screen, so maybe they're trying to hurry you, but it makes it harder finish if they repeatedly block the tiles. Unless it's meant to let you do it as a strategy to mess someone up from seeing the screen. From time to time my screen did not move the pieces where I did it or ended my turn by cancelling the incorrect recording of my moves. And the latest criticism is that the ads that force you to watch before you can play the next game are sometimes 5 seconds, 30 seconds, no one requires and other times they freeze and you have to get out of the game and restart. I love playing Rummikub with friends and was very excited when I found this app. Because I like to play in my spare time I choose the game Practice, which is against the computer rather than against live people. This way if I have to leave in the middle of a game or interrupt I can close it and reopen it as I please. To play any game you need coins. I initially bought coins for $2.99, but even in Practice mode you can earn more coins by watching videos or winning so many points. I do not think I wish you to buy coins again. Twice, when something didn't work out well, I contacted customer support and both times I got an immediate response and they quickly fixed the problem. Sometimes the game seems to get stuck (where it's stuck on one of the players), but they usually come out of the game and come back and fix it. This game is very close to the real thing, although when I play with friends we have stricter rules.
