The racing car image of Goran Bogicevic from Fotolia.com Car Racing comes in different types---but each focuses on specially designed race cars competing against each other according to different scenarios. Car racing has been around since 1895 and has become one of the most popular sports in the world. Made in Maranello, Italy---Ferrari is one of the most popular race cars in existence. The Scuderia Ferrari team is a popular Formula One participant. In 1993, German racecar driver Michael Schumacher drove a Ferrari 412T---laying World Formula 1 championship---made Ferrari one of the most successful brands in the race. The company also built cars for other motor racing events, such as the A1 Grand Prix series, from 2008 to 2009. They also produced 599 GTB Fiorano and F430 GT driven on the GT racing series during other Grand Prix events. Porsche has built many successful racers. He produced the legendary Porsche 917, which won two consecutive championships at Le Mans in 1970 and 1971. The Porsche 917 also won the Racing Series World Championship, collecting 8 out of 10 championships. Formula 1 races are considered to be the highest form of motor racing sanctioned by the Federation Internationale de l'Automobile. In the 2006 season, the top speed of Formula 1 cars was just over 300 km/h. In the establishment ---NASCAR races, such as the Sprint Cup Series and Daytona 5000, are the most popular types of races. Race cars used in NASCAR racing have a top performance of around 830 BHP per 9000 rpm, with a maximum torque of 520 pounds per foot. They shall be strictly limited as regards the permissible parts, materials, dimensions, minimum masses of components and other parts. NASCAR races are typically 300 to 500 miles in length and the design life of the engine for cars ranges up to 800 miles. Cars used in Formula 1 races are single-seat racers, generally with 2.4 ml of their own V8s. Ignition and fuel systems are controlled by a systematic computerised digital engine management system. With a minimum weight of 95 kilograms, these cars produce a peak output of around 755 BHP at more than 19,000 rpm and a maximum torque of 214 pounds per foot. Every Formula 1 race car has far fewer restrictions compared to NASCAR. Auto Bible is reader-supported. When you buy through links on our site, we can earn affiliate commissions. Different types of races customizable cars demanding levels of non-realistic display of boring pursuit repetitive stages Another revolutionary racing game is assetto corsa game on PlayStation 4. It's a game rolled out by a small Italian developer in early 2013. In the short span of a year, this game has become a word-of-mouth hit among many players, thanks to its authenticity and physics simulation. It easily reads like a typical underdog story with lots of reality. Six months after its highlighted fame, Assetto Corsa developers announced the inclusion of the console, which is one of the best racing games on the PC, if not the best. With over twenty tracks and a hundred cars to choose from, there's no doubt that the Assetto Corsa is the console driving sim you were looking for. From the laser-measured tracks of this game to the thoroughness of the car handling, every aspect has been designed to focus on pure physical realism and accuracy. Popularly referred to as Racing Simulator, this is a game where cars are king. Life-like models of some prestigious car manufacturers such as Ferrari, McLaren, Fiat, Lamborghini, Lotus and Mercedes Benz can be found in this game. If you are a player with a unique racing style, your preferred cars can be easily adjusted to suit you and meet your needs. Also, the ability of players to customize the race set-up and handling each car in the game helps them deepen their playing and racing experience. Adjusting the skills and other features offered to players not only brings a real and exciting racing experience, but also helps breed the realism that assetto corsa is globally known for.
