Linguapress; At home Découvrez l'Angleterre (en français) Discover Britain In our busy, busy life, we may not always have time to sit down and read a book. - No, it's okay! If you don't have time to read a book, you can always read a short story (or 12). Many short stories are great for learning English. They are not only quickly read, but also interesting and often quite funny. Many of them are loved by children, as well as by adults. What I have here today is a list of very short English stories that will only take a few minutes of your time to read. I've included old classic stories, bedtime stories and stories with morality (lessons) that have been passed down for generations. How to include very short English stories in your routine reading book, especially if it is in a foreign language, can take a lot of time and effort - things you may not have much if you work, go to college or have a family. Sometimes all you have is maybe 10-15 minutes between classes or while you're waiting for a friend. This may not be enough time to read the chapter in a book, but it is definitely enough time for a very short English 600 words or less. Yes, you can fit a very short English story in these few minutes because they are so fast Read. Just a few lines or paragraphs, and you'd have learned a new word or a new grammatical structure that you didn't know before. How cool, isn't it? When you read very short English stories, you should take care of several things: vocabulary and word use: No matter how short the story is, it always provides opportunities to learn new words. So look for new and interesting words that you may have seen before and notice how and where they are used in a sentence. Grammar: Short English stories may seem simple, but there are many you can learn even from a few short paragraphs. You will be surprised by what they can teach you about how grammar works in different situations, how the dozens are used and how sentences are built. Idioms and phrases: Do you see any familiar idioms or phrases? Any word on you? Look for useful new phrases and words, meanings, and add them to your practice list. I hope you have a list! Sleepy Teacher (85 words) It's a funny tale about a teacher who likes to go down every day. Read the story to find out what his disciples did to him. Sample dictionary: Nap — Short sleep, which is taken during the day. On hot afternoons or after a hard lunch, you may feel sleepy and want to take a nap. Has it ever happened to you? The Shepherd Boy and the Wolf (111 words) It's a popular story that teaches children a lesson about what happens when they lie. The moral here is that no one would believe a liar (someone who lies) even when they have told the truth. Sample vocabulary: Pay attention to his cries — to pay attention to his cries for help. The lesson in this story is that if you keep striving for your goal, you'll succeed even if the odds are against you. Sample dictionary: Agree to the proposal – agree to the proposal. This expression can be used in official English to sound more professional. Ant and Grasshopper (144 words) This is another great story for children and adults. The moral is that those who save during the good times will get to reap the benefits when the weather is bad. Sample dictionary: Corn ear — maize, which includes the seeds and the outer structure of the leaf. Here is another collective noun for corn: a field of corn - a field or land where maize is grown. Emily's Secret (187 words) It's a story about a little girl with a big secret she can't tell about. It is written in very basic English with simple vocabulary and short sentences. Illiterate — This adjective applies to someone who cannot read or write. Love is in the air (277 words) This modern story is written in simple English and speaks of a young lady who is afraid (think of with anxiety or fear) going to her family's annual barbecue. Sample dictionary: Vegetarian — A person who does not eat meat. Have you ever heard the word vegetarian? Vegan - vegan is also vegetarian, but stricter. What's the difference between a vegetarian and a vegetarian? The vegetarian does not eat meat, but can be fine with eggs or dairy products such as milk and cheese. However, the vegan does not eat meat, eggs or dairy products, nor does it use products that come from animals such as fur. Likable (333 words) In this very short English story, the author describes how pleasant (easy to like) character is. The interesting part is the many questions the author asks about her individuality. Although the story is short, there are quite difficult words here, so there is a dictionary convenient for this one. Sample dictionary: Why can the word be used in this sentence? These could be strangers, they could be people she loves... Maybe it's a modal verb that shows opportunity. The writer talks about a group of people, but he's not sure who they are. Here, the use of the word may indicate that they may be strangers, or and friends. Miracles (369 words) This is a beautiful contemporary story that describes a group of children gathering around their father to watch the little spiders hatch from their eggs. But history gets a different meaning as it nears the end. What do you think happened? Sample dictionary: Let's put our noses to it (the jar) — Get so close to the jar that your nose is almost touched. Royal servant (395 words) In this story, an old man persuades an African king to dig some wells in his village when their water flows dry. Read the story to understand the clever (smart) words he uses to get the king to do what he wants. Sample Dictionary: Do you know what this expression means? - This has nothing to do with blood or veins. It just means that people were very creepy. White Wing: The Tale of pigeons and the Hunter (505 words) This is one of my favorites: an Indian story that was originally written in Sanskrit (ancient language). It teaches us that what we can't do on our own may be possible if we work as a team. Sample dictionary: Let's look at the plural wood and how it is different from the singular. Forests — A small forest or a piece of land covered with trees. There's no form for that word. It is always used in plural. We'll fly her to the city, past these woods. Wood — the trunk or branch of a tree that is prepared to carry out a fire or furniture. There is no plural form for this word. It is always used in the singular. My new dining table is made of wood. Geese and Fig (600 words) Here's another Indian story with morality. This one tells us why we would be wise to take into account the advice of someone older and more experienced than us. Sample dictionary: Not all plural nouns are formed by adding -s or -es at the end. Here is a noun plural, which is formed by replacing the double vowels -oo- in the singular with -ee-: Goose (singular) / geese (plural) Can you think of other noun plurals that are shaped in the same way? Tooth / teeth, legs / legs. Bravo! I hope these very short English stories are interesting and fun to read. More importantly, I hope you learned something from each of them. For additional speaking practice, try reading them aloud or telling them to someone in your own words. Until next time, keep practicing!
