Wechat web sign up

There are 14million WeChat corporate accounts in the Wechat world, and how one by dividing your target customers stands out from your official account once you have v official account, you are able to develop WeChat payment, editing, Wechat advertising eligibility, red package, web integration, a long list of advanced WeChat functions will be added to your marketing arsenal, otherwise it means it gives you a portal to really put WeChat focused and China-oriented marketing strategy and lose data. WeChat official accounts launched back in 2012, and although there have been many changes over the years, one of the constants has been confusion regarding 1) how to set up an account, and 2) what type of account to register. We're trying to demystify each of these questions here. Recent updates have made it easy for companies in most countries to get their own account. Here's how to crack weChat's official account system right now: China vs. non-Chinese entity service accounts abroad if you've been following this space for a while, you may have noticed that the old international backend (admin.wechat.com) has been shut down as of September 2018. This is a good thing the accounts recorded on the international interface have not been shockingly visible to Chinese users. Now all official WeChat accounts are based on the same background and are accessible to Chinese users. That's progress! These accounts serve China abroad (considerate外need殊认证的内服务) still have many limitations compared to accounts registered in Chinese entities, but they may be good enough for what they need. Specific features, developer interfaces, and obtained requirements, vary by region where they are managed by various Tencent business development teams. If you don't have a Chinese company, your first step when registering an official account may be to consider whether an external account is good enough to do what you want to do on the WeChat platform. If not, you will either have to register a Chinese company or try to contact a third party agent who may be able to set up an account for you for a fee. We recommend WalktheChat.com. Register the official WeChat account as a non-Chinese entity. It's mostly available in English now. Click log now to get started. 1. Choose the account type as a non-Chinese entity, your only choice is the service account. 2. Create an email account that can be used only once in an official account, so you will need to send and check a unique email address. 3. Select your business license area and include the drop-down menu of most of the countries and regions of the world with the popular areas listed first. 4. Enter the details of the organization you will need to enter your company and business name Number just as you appear on your local business license. You'll also need to assign an account administrator, enter his full name and passport number, and check a mobile phone number. 5. Create an account profile you'll need to choose an account name, enter a short introduction to your account, and select the operating area. Your account is now registered! 6. Check that you have chosen to verify your account and you can start the verification process immediately. The cost of checking external official accounts is US$99 per year. Register the official WeChat account as an entity in mainland China to register as a Chinese organization, you will need a Chinese business license with relevant documents, as well as a Chinese citizen to register as an account administrator. To be clear, WFOE China (a wholly owned subsidiary of foreigners) is a Chinese company and can register weChat's official accounts directly. To get started, head to the official weChat accounting platform and click register now. 1. Choose your account type, choose whether you want to register a subscription account (订阅decide) or service account (服务 Register). We have written separately about WeChat Work accounts, which aim to internally use the company by employees and have a separate background in work.weixin.qq.com. This article concerned with corporate accounts will follow customers. The chart below covers important high-level differences. Check out our detailed overview of the features of the WeChat platform and developer interfaces for more comprehensive coverage. If you're still unsure what type of account you choose, ask for advice before continuing. Once you register your account, it is very difficult or even impossible to change the types. Unless you are a media company, we generally recommend service accounts for our customers. 2. Create an email account that can be used only once in an official account, so you will need to send and check a unique email address. 3. Select mainland China as your region 4. Enter your organization details as soon as you select the type of organization (government, media, companies, etc.) the appropriate form will request background information about your organization and account administrator. This step requires the registration of an official with a Chinese national identity (身份证 shon fèn zhèng) and a mobile phone number +86. A short code will be sent to the phone number for authentication. The admin will also need to scan the QR code to link to their WeChat account. One person can act as an administrator for a maximum of five official WeChat accounts. Δ important point: the role of the official is often misunderstood. Your business owns the account, not the administrator. As the owner of the official Chinese account for WeChat, you must control your email address and password to log into your account. As a non-Chinese citizen. You can add yourself as an operator after you register your account, and your admin won't need to get your account login credentials. After you have added yourself as an operator, you just need the administrator to add other operators, reset the AppSecret developer, and a few other sensitive tasks. You can change your admin at any time in collaboration with them, or you can remove it without their cooperation by rechecking your account at any time. Your company owns the account. 5. Select the authentication method there are three different ways to authenticate your work. If you are already going to go one step further and check (认证 rěnzhèng) your account, go ahead and choose the last option in this step, to check WeChat, which requires 300RMB (~50) annual fee. WeChat verification is the only option that provides the gold badge on your profile and access to platform features and advanced interfaces. 6. Create an account profile you'll need to choose an account name, enter a short introduction to your account, and select the operating area. Your account name is required to be unique. It prohibits spaces and most special characters — only Chinese letters and numeric alphabets. If you find someone who already uses your business name, WeChat has a neat feature that will display the account, and if you think it's qualified as a trademark violation, you can report it. If you're curious, check out this 2014 publication about how badly the brand on WeChat was in the early days. Once set, your account name can only be changed by going to the WeChat verification process again (and paying another 300RMB). Your account and pre-eleta logo can be changed up to five times a month. 7. Check the choice of WeChat verification as an authentication method, your account is now registered in a temporary state. You'll need to complete the verification process within 30 days. We were able to register and check the account for this blog post in less than twenty-four hours. In the meantime, WeChat drops you directly to the back of your new account and you'll be able to upload a profile picture and set up other key features while waiting for verification. 8. Add operators as discussed in the gray box note above, if you are a non-Chinese account holder, you have to add yourself as an operator so you can log in without the help of your admin. To do this you will need 1) bank card linked to your Personal Account WeChat, 2) you need to follow your new account, and 3) you will need the admin to clear the QR code. A WeChat account can personally be a trigger for up to five official WeChat accounts. Start in the settings &lt; security center, and click on details in the first row. In the second section under operator management, click the green button to add a player. You can Up to five long-term operators and up to twenty short-term operators (one month expiration). A pop-up will open and you'll need to select the user from your account followers. After an invitation to link your admin you will need to clear the QR code. Once approved, you will receive a template message in WeChat to accept the invitation. Congratulations! You've now got your official WeChat account! ☺ is it! My suggestion is that you prefer to choose the first method - mobile subscription. Didn't? Option 2 – Registering via Facebook is very difficult, because even if you want to use your Facebook account as your WeChat account, you still need to provide your phone number eventually. So choosing to sign up on a mobile phone would be much simpler. 4. Provide basic information to your WeChat account. You need to fill in all the blanks in order to continue. Please note: You'd better use your phone number to register WeChat. WeChat and QQ belong to the same company - Tencent. Tencent is very strict about the registration process. It's very easy, just follow the instructions and drag the slider to fit the puzzle piece. Then you will finish the first part of the security check. 7. Contact a WeChat user to clear the QR code. This is the most difficult part of the registration process. You need to contact a WeChat user to clear the QR code that appears on your phone screen. This WeChat user does not need to be your friend but must meet certain conditions: sign up for WeChat more than 1 month ago if they are an international user or more than 6 months ago if they are using in mainland China; It wasn't blocked last month; If you find someone who meets the above conditions, they can help you finish registration by scanning the QR code. 8.
