It's Burger Week, which means I want to know what burgers mean to you. Hello, and welcome back to What's Cooking?, an open thread where you can share your brilliant... Read moreA burger is a pretty simple concept — put a beef patty on a bun with some vegetables, herbs, and maybe cheese (just kidding, cheese is always involved), and you've got a burger. But, like pizza, people have very strong opinions about what makes the right burgers, and — more often — what they don't, and I want to hear you. As always, I have a question: Does the burger have to be beef? I'm pretty weak about calling veggie burgers and turkey burger burgers as long as they have the right descriptors in front of the word. Like, don't ask me if I want a burger, and then surprise me with a salmon burger — the word salmon is better to be there to tell me what's going to happen. What's your favorite alt-meat burger? It's a sheep. What's the best action burger you've ever eaten? Ramen Burger is very, very nice, like the burger I made that had doughnuts for bread. (Donuts are underrated as bread.) What toppings are acceptable? I go crazy. Lettuce, onions, tomatoes, pickles are about as far as I'm gone, but I'm going to with roasted onions from time to time. What toppings are unacceptable? Although I love it in pizza (and in gin), you better keep the pineapple away from my dang burger. I also don't care about avocados in burgers, because there's too much fat and all I feel is avocado. Is there cheese more suited to burgers than humble Americans? There's nothing! American cheese melts at its best, provides the perfect amount of cream goodness, and is light enough that it doesn't reduce or distract. I also enjoy blue cheese from time to time (when I get wild hair), but it is a completely different animal, because it is basically the opposite of American.Which seasoning makes it in your burger all the time? Mayo is always there, followed by ketchup and mustard. Please don't put BBQ sauce on my burger. What's your favorite fast food burger? Although I lived in In-n-Out land for many years, I must admit that Shake Shack was better. I also love McDonald's because I am a garbage person made of garbage. What about bread? I adore steamed white squishy bread, and found that most grocery store buns - both sesame and plain white - were fine for my purposes. Pretzel bread can be fun if you have boi thicc and want to be push, but I rarely do. Do you like thick or thin patty? How do you cook it? Thin's in. As always, feel free to answer all, nothing, or some of the above questions, or just leave your burger mistake in the comments below. If you want to get a real shout out about burgers, now is your chance. Opportunity.
