Apple While Verizon and AT T had offers ready to go when Apple announced its latest iPhone 12 line, T-Mobile took the day off. On Wednesday, the carrier finally unveiled its offerings, and although they are not as aggressive as AT and T, the carrier has some discounts available for those who change or upgrade. For switches, the carrier offers a two iPhone 12 Pros and two service lines package with its Unlimited Essentials package for $100 per month when negotiating two eligible devices. The Essentials plan is the company's cheapest unlimited plan that would normally run $120 per month for two lines with no iPhone included. Although it lacks benefits like free Netflix or international data roaming outside of Canada and Mexico, it has unlimited discussions, text and data and hotspot access (although the latter is capped at 3G speeds). Taxes and fees are not included in this plan, and you will need to stay on T-Mobile for 30 months to fully refund iPhones. If you leave before that date, the remaining balance on the phones is due. Read: Our first impressions of the iPhone 12, 12 Mini, 12 Pro and 12 Pro Max Those who add a line or switch but don't want the Essentials deal can get up to $850 on any new iPhone 12 series as long as you add a line and trade in an eligible device in good condition. According to T-Mobile's website, the $850 will be applicable if you trade in an iPhone 11 Pro, iPhone 11 Pro Max, iPhone XS, iPhone XS Max. Those trading in an iPhone 11, iPhone XR, iPhone X, iPhone 8, iPhone 8 Plus will get $680 less while older iPhones like the iPhone 7, iPhone 7 Plus and second-generation iPhone SE will get $530 less. The carrier is even giving up $230 off when trading in an iPhone 5s, iPhone 5, iPhone 5c, iPhone 4s, iPhone 4, iPhone 3GS, iPhone 3G or first-generation iPhone. As with other carriers, discounts will be given as bill credits over 30 months to keep you on the T-Mobile network. If you want to refund the device before you can, the monthly bill credits will continue to come as long as you stay with T-Mobile. However, if you change before the end of the 30 months, you risk losing the credits. It is also interesting to note that the carrier limits the maximum number of device exchanges per account to four, and that there may be other fees such as a $10 SIM card fee or $20 aid or upgrade support. You'll also be on the hook for all taxes. Discounts for upgrades and long-term users Angela Lang/CNET Those who already have T-Mobile or Sprint will be able to get up to $500 on a new iPhone 12 series phone through bill credits when trading in an eligible device in good condition. The ventilation of the appliances is a little different from the offer offer new customers. The $500 will be offered to those trading in a Pro 11, 11 Pro Max, XS, XS Max (but not the 512GB 11 Pro and 256GB/512GB 11 Pro Max), while $415 less is available for those trading in an iPhone 11, XR, X, 8, or 8 Plus. Those who have an iPhone 7, 7 Plus or a second-generation iPhone SE can get $300 less, and the iPhone 6S, 6S Plus, 6, 6 Plus and get original you'll get $215 less. Any older model dating from the original iPhone will get $50 less. The operator also gives those who have been with T-Mobile or Sprint for five years or more an extra $200 on any new iPhone when you trade or turn in any iPhone active on an eligible plan. Although it was not immediately clear which plans would be eligible, T-Mobile combines this offer with the up to $500 less promotion, which could result in potential savings of $700. As with the switcher agreement, discounts will be expected in the form of monthly credits. Unlike some of its rivals, all T-Mobile and Sprint plans will be able to use 5G. The new iPhones, which support 5G, presents a unique opportunity for T-Mobile. After falling behind Verizon and AT-T in the early years of the 4G LTE, thanks to its Sprint merger earlier this year, the non-carrier is left with a 5G network that is more robust than its rivals and one that offers all three flavors of 5G. In a blog post released Tuesday, CEO Mike Sievert touted that his company's national low-band 5G network now covers 260 million people and that its 5G medium-band network - which offers a significant improvement in speed over the low band while still working indoors - is now available to 25 million people. T-Mobile plans to expand the midband offering to cover 100 million people by the end of the year, but it has yet to provide an update to extend its higher and faster millimeter wave service beyond the six cities it launched last year. The new iPhone 12 and 12 Pro will be available for pre-order on Friday before going on sale on October 23. The 12 Mini and 12 Pro Max will be pre-ordered on November 6 before sales begin on November 13. Phoneschevron_rightApplechevron_rightiPhone 12 ProIn shares.
