Zero gravity indoor skydiving

AeroKIDS is the experience dedicated to boys and girls from 4 to 11 years of age. It includes a briefing, an instructor and a 2 minute flight with the coach. AeroSIX is dedicated to one, two or three participants. It includes a briefing, an instructor, equipment and 6 minute flight to be shared between participants. AeroSTART is a package that provides an exclusive experience with a professional coach. It includes a briefing, a personal instructor and 120 second flight. Anti-gravity: the dream of any would-be astronaut and space obsessed kid (okay, there we are kidding, adults too!). It sounds pretty good: completely free of gravitational boundaries bordering weightless, bouncing from lunar craters to lunar craters. But we've got a bit of bummer news: anti-gravity doesn't exist. Here's a quick physics briefing. Way back when Sir Isaac Newton concluded that gravity was what made an apple fall from a tree and kept plants, animals and humans calling this spinning planet home from being flung out willy nilly into space. In addition, Sir Issac Newton inferred that gravity exists between all objects and that gravity is an attraction between two masses in the universe. Turns out this force even exists completely into orbit, and the only way to escape gravity is to reach a region of space far beyond all celestial bodies. So what are the hopeful zero gravity dreams to do? Well, you can get close, empty your pockets (it runs just under $5,0000), and give your stomach a run for its money, in a modified Boeing 727 that takes passengers up to 24,000feet on a steep parabolic arc to evoke 1.8G's on a trip affectionately nicknamed the throwaway (does yummy right?) OR You can experience something else really spectacular (and less nausea inducing): indoor skydiving. Indoor skydiving is not the same as a truly zero gravity experience. This is because you are freely descending rather than completely defying the earth's grip on you; but it's so close you can get to the fun, padded and weightless feeling you craving! Consider the indoor wind tunnel your personal anti-gravity chamber – here's why: Amazing Air Acrobatics One of the most enchanting things about a zero-gravity experience would be the fluid, flipping, head over heels acrobatics. Guess what? This zero gravity ride is exactly what can happen during indoor skydiving. Beginner flyers will generally fly on the horizontal axis of their body (i.e. their stomach or back). But as a flyer develops skills can then start experimenting with other directions (think head up like sitting in a chair or head down with your feet in the air). These topsy turvy mind bending acrobatics are as mesmerizing to see as they are fun to do! Build skills and make friends So, what would you say to be able to come so zero gravity as possible and to a good time flying with your friends? Although, if your friends won't join you, the indoor skydiving tunnel offers flyers the opportunity to connect with others and make friends. The other nice thing about flying in the indoor wind tunnel is the ability to build and develop skills that are necessary for body flight. While nature may have gifted you with wings, you can still fly! Fun for the whole family Indoor skydiving can quickly become a family affair! Flying in the indoor wind tunnel is suitable for people of all ages. In fact, we routinely host flyers from ages 3 to 93! While a full anti-gravity experience may be too much for grandparents, a flight in the indoor wind tunnel is perfectly fine. Get aunts and uncles off the sidelines and get everyone out to experience the joy of flying! Are you ready to pause gravity? Check out the (close to) zero gravity experience today on Paraclete XP. Have you ever been on a circular carnival ride that spins so fast the centrifugal force makes you feel weightless? It's zero gravity ride, and a common misconception of indoor skydiving is that it replicates a zero gravity experience. Although they are similar, the wind tunnel experience doesn't give you that weird feeling after the carnival ride. Instead, it combines elements of weightlessness and flying! HOW ZERO GRAVITY WORKS Zero gravity is a state where there is no apparent gravity felt on the physical body – the environment is free and just as accelerating. There are more sophisticated rides you can choose, aside from zero gravity riding at a carnival that includes the 30-second, $5,000 ride in Newark, New Jersey. WHAT IS A WIND TUNNEL A wind tunnel is the large wind pipe used during indoor skydiving, which is generally a free-falling skydiving simulator in a circular chamber that creates an air column. The wind tunnel simulates the freefall part of a traditional skydive, and it's a great way to experience skydiving without jumping out of an actual plane. IS THE WIND TUNNEL CLOSE TO ZERO GRAVITY? The Zero G tour of New Jersey looks cool, but it's not available to most people. So how is our wind tunnel the closest thing to replicating a zero gravity ride? Firstly, our wind tunnel chamber is very similar to a space-like environment. Second, zero gravity is a feeling of weightlessness. Even if you step into a blast of air with the wind tunnel, you float in the air when you orient yourself to the wind - basically feeling weightless! INDOOR PARACHUTE JUMP VS. ZERO GRAVITY RIDE We're probably biased, so we asked a few friends and non-flying people what they thought the differences between zero gravity experiences and wind tunnel flying were. If you're looking for a wind tunnel near you, paraclete XP Indoor is located in the Raeford, N.C. and serves the Fayetteville, Fort Bragg, Raleigh, Greensboro, Charlotte, and Atlanta areas. If you visit or if one of these cities is your home, we welcome you to check us out! John L. July 2019 Really fun and exciting experience, and the instructors made it really special. It's amazing what a big difference an enthusiastic and personable instructor makes for this kind of experience. We didn't feel rushed and our instructor was really excited to teach and help us improve.
