The iPhone is not so much a smartphone as it is an app phone. That's all the Home screen really is – a gate of apps. Type an icon, launch an app. But which apps should you launch? From nearly a million apps to them on the iPhone App Store which is what every new iPhone owner really needs to have? Who will best help you with your work, your hobby, your responsibility, and your pleasure? From all the apps, who deserves your attention? Who is the best? In short – these. Based on years of experience and overwhelming testing and comparison, these are the apps and games we consider must-have and recommend you download now. These are the best apps for the iPhone. To paraphrase Peter Griffin, apps do — a world go round, and what's the use of having an iPhone if you won't charge it up with interesting and useful apps? Free apps are the best, but sometimes you just can't find the features or the pleasure you're looking for without cult out a bit of flour. Here are the best paying apps for iPhone! My criteria for apps on this list since this is the best paid apps for iPhone, I decided to include apps that you must pay for front or apps that might be free to download, but a necessary subscription or functionality are greatly increased by making a purchase in-app or by buying the paid version. I also eliminate iOS apps that might be totally scary, but are better suited to iPad (music instrument apps, write apps, etc.). Here we go! Plex OK, so we're starting off with an app that you don't actually have to pay download, but it is better if you pay to use it, make it a paid app in my eyes, and easily one of the best around. The Plex media server is a way for you to enjoy all of your home media without having to constantly plug in on a hard drive. You just need the free Plex software on your computer and then the app, and you can enjoy all your favorite movies, TV shows, music videos, whatever, from all your devices – all you need is an Internet connection. The beauty of Plex is just that – it's elegant. The app organizes all of your media for you and even adds rich descriptions, art, and more, giving everything a feel full and finished (don't like earning your first iPod where you couldn't bother to find art albums, so you just had thousands of songs going by and white background presented those eight notes). The Paid Plex Pass allows you to upload even more content to your server; trailers and extra for movies in your library (special features and what isn't); set up Plex Homes for your family (allowing you to switch between accounts and parent control staff accounts and restrictions on certain content); activate all Plex's mobile apps across all devices and platforms just by signing in to your account in the app; and a whole bunch more! If you have a large media library and hate suitcases around a hard drive (or five) or you like to watch and listen to your stuff on the go, then Plex is perfect for you. Free download; Plex Pass is $4.99 per month, $39.99 per year, or $119.99 for a lifetime subscription – Download now 1Password 1Password is yet another app that's free to download, but you'll eventually need to pay retention using it (Downloading gets you a free 30-day trial). It's your one-stop shop and allows you to store the pretty many passwords each account in your life, to help you switch them to random, make them stronger – all you have to remember is your 1Pass password! 1Pass password is not just a stellar password management app; it can also house credit card numbers, addresses – really any information that you deem sensitive can be locked away from your very own vault for your eyes only. The app works with TouchID, making it even more secure, allowing only those with your fingerprint to get in (namely, yours, duh). There's also an Apple Watch app, which allows you to decide what information you'd like to access quickly on your watch, and the small screen makes it ideal! Free download; 1Passpasword subscription is $2.99 a month, yearly billing; 1Password Family is $4.99 a month, yearly bill – Download now Fantastic 2 There calendar apps and there are calendar apps, and then there's Fantastic 2. First off, it's gorgeous; it just looks great. It's got a nice interface that easily reads and follows, and it's fast. That's the whole point of Fantastic. Second, it has cool features, such as parent natural language, reminders, an extended keyboard when creating new events or reminders (you have no idea how useful that until you use it!), and more. One of the most cool features is the natural language parser, allowing you to simply type in a sentence, such as romantic dine and René on Fridays at 8pm, and then automatically turn it into a calendar event, reminding you of the day. If you have a busy crazy schedule and not a lot of time input events in a regimented manor, then Fantastic 2 will save you a ton of time. It's basically a written calendar/reminder version of Siri! Donations in Tom's Guide also think Fantastical 2 is worth your moolah, says it takes your standard calendar app that comes with iOS and offers better features on all front. My light couldn't make a better apps post without one for the photo fans or Telea would have hidden me. Light is SO. Brother. She was chosen as the ABS App in the App Store in eight countries, including Canada, eh, and it ran up App of the Year in the US, and it's still awesome two years later! Light is the photo editing app in your dreams, combining features of many apps into one, gorgeous announcement, allowing you to total control over color, tone, detail, masking, and a whole host of sleek effects (such as mixing and outlining – you can create some seriously clean shit). You can transform the à Prisma image to make them look like graffit or pencil designs, and you can layer pictures, change specific objects in them, correct over-exposure and much more, like tons. Light is basically hipster Photoshop for your iPhone – but in a totally awesome way. If you like the post-production that goes along with photography, then definitely check out Light. Scanner Pro If you like to take your document with you or you need to send a lot of them and don't have time to delve that former device called a fax machine, then your Pro Scanner is covered in a great way. It allows you to take pictures of documents with your iPhone and then save them as PDF, and it even automatically recognizes the specific document types, crops them accordingly. You can then upload your analysis right into your favorite storage app. That's just the tip of the iceberg. Scanner Pro also allows you to share anything you analyze, and it can turn the text into the images into text that you can select and copy, while recognizing 21 languages. You can even edit your analysis, and each edit remembers, so you can come back and reverse or redo edits as you please. There's also an iMessage extension that allows you to capture and edit photos of documents right in the Messages app. It's all about the workflow, baby! If you deal with physical documents on a regular basis and need a fast, easy, and reliable way to digit them and share them, then Scanner Pro is the only way to go (and not just because that rhymes). V for Wikipedia I would never have known about this app if it wasn't for TechRadar, and I'm sure glad I found it. Be real – you'll use Wikipedia anyway, so why not have it all in a convenient and really very app – easily the most elegant Wikipedia app for the iPhone of that. V (former Vichy) made the Best App Store listed in 2016 because it does more than just give you information – it helps you find out more about where you live! The nearby place feature helps you discover more about local landmarks and areas, and you can explore the rest of the world by using the app map. The most section Read Items allows you to see what other as they are looking at, and the search is the full experience of Wikipedia (not as when searching through the YouTube app would bring up different results than you would find online – remember that garbage?). Why pay for an Wikipedia app? Because V is much more sleepy and more elegant than Wikipedia's Internet it can help you learn more about the edge of the world; and it's more than just Wikipedia of face value – it takes all the benefits of Wikipedia and gives them practical applications. (Though not optimized for iPhone X, V made the list because it really is the best Wikipedia reader available for iOS.) Sky Guide AR Sky AR is an augmented reality app showing you a map in the sky and tells you about damage near everything you can see and tons of things you can't. It's the perfect companion for your new iPhone X, so you can take advantage of all that ARKit goodness and power graphics. You calibrated the app, usually don't find where the Sun or Moon happens to, and then move your iPhone around figure out which consultation is that, which planet is over there, and what the names of random stars are. If you're really jones to see a particular planet or context, you can search for it, or the app has a list of Sky Guide settings to let you know what is celestial happening you'll see that night and when. The app included Apple Watch will even give you a quick look at what you can see at any given moment. Whether you are at all curious about the night sky or you are looking for yourself in a perceived sense of corporations, Instagram dinners, and the carads this point we call life, then definitely check out Sky Guide AR. No, you don't need to be that dramatic to enjoy it. Alto's adventure has no endless runs like Alto's adventure. In this scrolling side adventure, you play as Alto, a little boy in the mountains with llamas has escaped. On a snow, you have to chase them across the country, collect them for points. You must also dodge obstacles and do tricks to point. But that doesn't draw Alto's main adventure. This absolutely stunning game is all about the ambiance and beauty of the in-game desert. The score is absolutely happy with the colors and the beautiful scenery. If you hate to run endless, then this is the one that could turn you around, since it's easily one of the most relaxing gaming experiences around. I can't recommend this game enough. Delivery If you run a small business or just arrive to ship and receive lots of packages, then you need delivery. It's a completely comprehensive package tracker that compiled all of your delivery for you and gives you information about them individually, including shipping updates and where they are on a map. Delivery lets you know which company is shipping your package, allowing you to view the company's website and learn more about them. You can share shipment information via email or via the iMessage app, and there's even an Apple Watch app to help you keep track of the go. yes, could you run around each boat's website and check your tracking for free, but why, when delivery makes it so easy and convenient? If you're looking for option tracking packages, Lory Gil has a few more favorites! CARROT Weather If the iOS Weather app doesn't quite do it for you, CARROT Weather is one of the best weather apps you can find, period. It has a fantastic kentone-looking that's both fun and informative, and gives extensive details about your daily weather. It's prediction the rains are second to none and the backgrounds are changing and the bad weather makes every day a bit of a surprise. Like CARROT Fit, Weather also has a fun personality, which you can put in Overkill, and get the worst weather updates you've ever received in your life. With iOS 11, you also get an AR environment, displaying the awesome might of the nasscent ARKit. Minecraft's craft sensation isn't meant to lose steam, and with more than half a million ratings in the App Store, Minecraft still holds a 4.5-star rating. And why wasn't it? It's Seinfeld's in video games; it's about nothing and that's what makes it so fun. I'm with forage for materials; build up your world as you see fit; raise cattle; gunman tired; take on someone else's sweet mansion; possibilities are limited only by your imagination. Explore and create. Create and explore. Or you can play in survival mode with just making guns and towers to defend against mobile santhirsty. (Though not optimized for iPhone X, Minecraft made the list because it's very likely that an update is coming soon, and it's friggin'Minecraft.) Why is the money gone? What is the best app you've ever paid for? What's the app you bought but regret the most? Let us know in the comments below! Update November 2017: Updated for iPhone X. Swapped out SkyView for Sky AR Guide because AR, and added Minecraft because MINECRAFT! Also update pricing for everything. We might earn a commission to purchase using our links. learn more. More.
