enable. The next time you search for text in Word, the search will now work with the advanced options you choose. RELATED: Microsoft Word: Document Formatting Essentials When you want to find something specific on a web page, you can search for it. Learn how to search for a word on a page using either the Find Word feature in major web browsers or a search engine like Google. The easiest way to find a word on a page is to use the Find Word feature. It is available in major web browsers, including Chrome, Microsoft Edge, Internet Explorer, Safari, and Opera. Here are the keyboard shortcuts: When you're on the web page, press Ctrl+F in Windows and Linux. On a Mac, press Command+F. Type the word (or phrase) you want to find. Press Enter. The web page scrolls to the nearest instance of the word. If the word appears more than once on the Web page you're searching, press Enter to go to the next instance. You can also select the arrows on the right (or left) side of the Find Word window. Another way to search web pages is to use a relevant menu bar. On a Mac, use the following process, regardless of which browser you're using. Use this process when using either Safari or Opera. Go to the menu bar at the top of the page, and then choose Edit. On this page, choose Find. Some browsers may have the Search option. In the browser you're using, you may need to take four steps instead of three. For example, with Google Chrome, you'll need to use google.com. If you're using a Windows PC or Linux, or if you want to use your web browser instead of the operating system, do the following for each major browser (except Safari and Opera). These instructions should work for the corresponding mobile browsers as well. For Google Chrome, Mozilla Firefox, and Microsoft Edge: Select the More icon (it's located in the upper-right corner of the browser window). Choose Search or Find on this page. In Internet Explorer 11, select Features, hover over file, and then choose Search this page. Type the keyword and press Enter. If you don't know the specific page where a desired word or phrase can be found, you can use Google to search for a specific word or phrase and target the site you want to find it on. Google has special characters and features to narrow and control your search. Go to Google. You can also use your browser's search feature if it's configured to use Google as a search engine. Type a web site followed by a colon (:) and the name of the site you want to search. It should look like this: site:lifewire.com After leaving a room and entering search terms. All in all, it should be something like this: site:lifewire.com Android apps Press Enter to display the search results. Search results come from the site you specified. To further narrow search results, attach the keywords in quotation marks, which causes the search engine to look for the exact phrase. Thanks for letting us know! Tell us why! That means catching up with friends, getting back to routine, shining new school supplies, and learning new things. There are some steps you can take to make sure that back-to-school time goes smoothly for your kids: If sleep schedules have gotten off track over the summer, start making adjustments a few weeks before school starts. Back up bedtimes by 5 to 15 minutes a night until you are back for a regular bedtime. Build excitement for the first day. Go shopping for new school supplies or a backpack together. If you homeschool, decorate the schoolroom or let your students help choose the curriculum they want to use or the books they will read. Plan something special for the first day. Have a family favorite for breakfast, go out to eat, or plan a fun field trip. Relax back in the routine. Homeschooling families should not feel that they have to jump into every topic the first week. Choose a few core subjects and a few electives. Then add in one or two items each week until you are back to a full course load. Use the following free printables to celebrate back-to-school time in your homeschool or classroom. China, the third largest country in the world, is located in the east of Asia. Officially known as the People's Republic of China, the country has the world's largest population, a whopping 1.3 billion people! China's civilization goes back thousands of years. Traditionally, the nation has been ruled by powerful families known as dynasties. A number of dynasties were in power from 221 B.C to 1912. The Chinese government was taken over by the Communist Party in 1949. This party still has control of the country today. One of China's best-known landmarks is the Great Wall of China. Construction of the wall began in 220 B.C. during China's first dynasty. The wall was built to keep the attackers out of the country. At over 5,500 miles long, the Great Wall is the longest structure built by humans. Mandarin, China's official language, is spoken by more people than any other language. Mandarin is a symbol-based language so it doesn't have an alphabet. It can be difficult to learn because it has four different tones and a neutral tone, which means that as a single word can have multiple meanings. The Chinese New Year is one of China's most popular holidays. It does not fall on 1 January as we think of the New Year. Instead, it begins on the first day of the lunar calendar. This means that the holiday date varies from year to year. It falls sometime between late January and early February. The celebration lasts for 15 days and features dragon and lion parades and fireworks. Fireworks were invented in China. Every year is named after an animal in the Chinese zodiac.
