The Paranormal Activity franchise has a found image of a real event that is expected to happen to a pair of California brothers who were captured by the demonstration forces. Spoilers ahead! Paramount camera footage from fall 2006 shows a young couple - Katie and her boyfriend Micah - sitting in their new suburb San Diego home. Katie thinks she's been haunted since childhood by ghosts, and although Micah is skeptical, he sets up a camera around the house to capture any evidence of the supernatural. After twisting and turning, Micah died, and Katie disappeared. Paramount in 2006, Kristi (Katie's sister from the first film) and her husband Dan returned to the Carlsbad, California, home one day to find it ran in this prequel to the first film in the franchise. Dan installed security cameras all over the house and video cameras captured a series of movements and strange sounds that seemed to be centered around son Hunter. The film also focuses on a demonstration unit connected to Katie. Many characters wind dead at the end of this story, with Katie once again missing this time with Hunter along with her. Paramount, this is Starting in 2005 with Katie delivering a videotape box to Kristi's house for safety (which was mysteriously stolen a year later during a run away from Paranormal Activity 2), inside is a home video from September 1988 that reveals the ordeal the experienced sister is a woman they don't fully remember as an adult. The film produces stories told in the first two films of the franchise. Katie and Hunter still don't know the address, but they appear in a suburb in Henderson, Nevada, where a single mother who gathers (Katie) and her young son move into a house across the street from 15-year-old Alex and her family. The film took place in Oxnard, California, in 2012, where a group of Latino high school students felt threatened by cults and demonstrations. The film follows the same format as the previous one in the franchise, with recording devices playing a role in the action and a variety of unusual events involving the damage of demonstrations to everyone involved. The latest film in the Paranormal franchise follows a new family who moved into a house in Santa Rosa, California, in 2013, and they discover a videotape box featuring Katie and Kristi as a child with a story told in the previous movie. They have a daughter, Laila, who was born on the same day as Hunter in the previous movie, and it seems the old Red Devil is back, this time targeting the little girl. As in previous movies, video devices play a role in recording unusual events that occur. Occurs
