Your computer may not meet the hardware requirements; you may have bought a toy by accident. You may have played the title for an hour and just didn't like it. It doesn't matter. Valve will help.steampowered.com/refund on request for any reason if the request is made within the required return period and, in the case of games, if the title has been played for less than two hours. Here are more details, but even if you don't fall out of the refund rules we described, you can still request a refund and we'll look at it. A full refund of your purchase will be made within one week of approval. You will receive your refund in steam wallet funds or the payment method used to make the purchase. If, for any reason, Steam is unable to issue a refund using the initial payment method, your Steam Wallet will be credited with the full amount. (Some payment methods available through Steam in your country may not support the refund of your purchase to the original payment method. Click here for the full list.) Steam's refund offer applies to games and software apps in the Steam Store within two weeks of purchase and with less than two hours of play time. Here's an overview of how refunds work for other types of purchases. The DLC refund for downloadable content (Steam Store content that can be used in another game or software app, DLC purchased in the Steam Store) is refundable within fourteen days of purchase and if the underlying address has been played for less than two hours since the purchase of DLC, as long as the DLC has not been used, modified or transferred. Please note that in some cases Steam may not be able to refund some third-party DLC (for example, if DLC irreversibly events out the game's character). These exceptions will be clearly marked as non-refundable on the Store page prior to purchase. Refunds for in-game purchases offer a steam refund for in-game purchases developed by Valve within forty-eight hours of the in-game element not being used, modified or transferred. Third-party developers have the option to allow refunds for in-game products under these terms. Steam will tell you when you buy developer has decided to offer a refund for the in-game item you purchase. Otherwise, in-game purchases made in non-Valve games will not be refundable through Steam. Refund pre-purchased titles If you pre-purchase an address on Steam (and pre-paid for the address), you can request a refund at any time before issuing that address. The standard 14-day/two-hour refund period is valid from the game release date onwards. Steam Wallet Refunds You can request a refund of Steam Wallet funds within fourteen days of purchase if you purchased them on Steam and if you haven't used these funds yet. Renewable subscriptions For some content and services, Steam offers regular (e.g. monthly, annual) access, for which you pay repeatedly. If no renewable subscription has been used during the current billing cycle, you can request a refund within 48 hours of the first purchase or within 48 hours of automatic renewal. Content is deemed to be used if any game has been played within the subscription during the current billing cycle, or if the benefits or discounts associated with the subscription have been used, used, modified, or transferred. Please note that you can cancel your active subscription at any time on the account details page. After you cancel, your subscription won't automatically renew, but you'll retain access to the content and benefits of your subscription until the end of the current billing cycle. Steam Hardware Within the timeframe set out in the Hardware Refund Policy, you can request a refund for Steam hardware and accessories purchased through Steam for any reason. You must return the hardware to us within fourteen (14) days of requesting a refund, following the instructions provided by us. For detailed instructions on how to return and delete Steam hardware and accessories, see the hardware refund policy. You can get a full refund on packages purchased in the Steam Store if none of the items in the package have been transferred and if the total usage time of all items in the package is less than two hours. If a package includes an in-game item or DLC that is non-refundable, Steam will tell you if the full package is refundable during check-out. Purchases made outside of Steam Valve may not refund purchases made outside of Steam (for example, CD keys purchased from third parties or Steam wallet cards). VAC Bans If VAC (the Valve Anti-Cheat System) has banned you from a game, you lose the right to refund the game. Video content We can't refund you from steam (e.g. movies, short films, series, episodes, and tutorials), unless the video is bundled with other (non-video) refundable content. Refund of gifts Refunds for exchanged gifts may be refunded within the 14-day/two-hour refund. may be used. Redeemed gifts may be refunded under the same conditions if the recipient of the gift initiates the refund. The amount used to purchase the gift will be returned to the original customer. EU withdrawal right To understand the right of withdrawal, click here to explain how the EU withdrawal law works for Steam customers. Abuse refunds are designed to remove the risk of buying on Steam — not as a way to get free games. If we believe that you are abusing refunds, we may not offer them to you. We do not consider it abusive to request a refund to an address purchased immediately before the sale, and then immediately repurchases this address for the sale price. Page 7 Valve respects the privacy of its online visitors and customers' products and services and complies with the law on the protection of your data, including, but not limited to, the California Consumer Data Protection Act (CCPA), the European Union General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), and the Swiss and EU Privacy Shield frameworks. 1. The following where we are talking about the following personal data, we are thinking of information that may either identify you as an individual (PERSONALLY identifiable information) or that may be indirectly related to you by linking it to personally identifiable information. The valve is also anonymous data, aggregated or not, for the analysis and production of statistics on customer habits, usage patterns and demographics as a group or individuals. Such anonymous data does not allow you to identify the customers to whom it relates. Valve may or may not share anonymous information with third parties. 2. Why does Valve collect and process the data, Valve collects and processes personal information for the following reasons: (a) if the provision of a full-featured game service and the related Content and Services are necessary to fulfill our agreement with you; (b) where necessary to fulfill legal obligations under tax legislation (e.g. our obligation to retain certain information under tax laws); (c) if this is necessary for the legitimate and legal interests of Valve or a third party (e.g. the interests of our other clients) (e.g. the interests of our other clients), unless such interests are overridden by your existing legitimate interests and rights; or (d) if you have given your consent. These reasons for collecting and processing Personal Data determine and limit what personal data we collect and how we use it (see section 3 below), how long we store it (section 4 below), who has access to it (section 5 below), and what rights and other control mechanisms are available to you as a user (section 6 below). 3. Types and sources of data we collect 3.1 Basic account information When you set up an Account, Valve collects your email address and country of residence. You must also enter a user name and password. This information is required to register your Steam user account. When you set up your account, your account brings a number (the Steam ID) that we later use for your user account link without directly revealing personal identification information about you. We do not require you to enter or use your real name to set up your Steam user account. 3.2 Transaction and payment information In order to complete a transaction on Steam (e.g. purchase content and service subscriptions or fund your Steam Wallet), you may need to provide payment information to Valve to enable the transaction. If you pay by credit card, you must provide Valve with the typical credit card information (name, address, credit card number, expiration date and security code) that Valve processes and forwards to the payment service provider of your choice to enable the transaction and perform anti-fraud checks. Similarly, Valve information from your payment service provider. 3.3 Other information that you expressly submit, collect and process personal information when you explicitly provide it to us or send it as part of your communication with others for example, in Steam social forums, chats, feedback or other user-generated content. This information includes: information that you post, comment on or follow in any of our Content and Services; Information sent via chat; Information you provide when you request information or support from us or purchase Content and Services from us, including information necessary to process your orders with that payment merchant or, in the case of physical goods, with forwarders; The information you provide when you participate in tournaments, tournaments and competitions or respond to surveys, such as your contact information. 3.4 When you use the Steam Client and the Websites, we collect different information through your general interaction with the websites, content and services offered by Steam. Personal information we collect may include, but is not limited to, browser and device data, automated electronic interactions, and app usage data. Similarly, we track your process through our websites and apps to check that you are not a robot and to optimize our services. 3.5 Your use of the Games and other Subscriptions In order to provide you with services, we must collect, store and use different information about your activities in our Content and services. Content information includes your Steam ID and what is commonly called game statistics. During game statistics, we think about game preferences, game progress, game time, and the device you're using, including the operating system you're using, device settings, unique device IDs, and crash data. 3.6 Tracking Data and Cookies Cookies, which are text files placed on your computer and similar technologies (e.g. web beacons, pixels, advertising tags and device identifiers), to help us analyze how users use our services and to improve the services we offer to improve marketing, analysis or website functionality. The use of cookies is standard on the Internet. Although most web browsers automatically accept cookies, the decision whether or not to accept them is yours. You can change your browser settings to prevent cookies from being received or to notify you when a cookie is sent to you. You can refuse to use cookies by selecting the appropriate settings for your browser. For more information on how to manage the use of cookies in each browser, see the following Help page: However, please note that if you do this, you may not be able to access the full functionality of our websites. When you visit any of our services, our servers log your IP address, which is a number that is automatically assigned to the network of which your computer is part. 3.7 Content recommendations We may process the information in this Article 3(2) the following shall be replaced by the This is done to improve the customer experience. You can prevent your data from being processed in this way by turning off the automatic loading of the Steam store page and Steam notifications in the Interface section of steam customer settings. If you specifically consent, or if expressly permitted by e-mail marketing laws, Valve may send you marketing messages about the products and services offered by Valve to your email address. In such a case, we may use the information we collect to customize such marketing messages and to collect information about whether you opened these messages and which links you followed in their text. You can unsubscribe or revoke your consent to receive marketing emails at any time by withdrawing your consent on the same page where you previously provided it, or by clicking the unsubscribe link in each marketing email. 3.8 Information necessary for the detection of violations We collect certain data that is necessary to detect, investigate and prevent SSA and applicable laws (Violations). This data will only be used for the purpose of detecting, investigating, preventing and, where appropriate, relevant to such infringements and will only be stored for the minimum period necessary for this purpose. If the data indicate that there has been an infringement, we will continue to store data on the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims during the applicable limitation period or until a legal case is resolved. Please note that we will not disclose any specific data stored for this purpose to you if the disclosure compromises the mechanism through which we detect, investigate and prevent such violations. 4. The duration of the storage of the data We will store your data only for as long as is necessary to fulfill the purposes for which the data are collected and processed, or, where the applicable law requires a longer storage and retention period, for the statutory storage and retention period. Your personal information will then be deleted, blocked or anonymised, in accordance with applicable law. In particular: If you terminate your Steam user account, your personal data will be deleted unless legal requirements or other legitimate purposes allow for longer storage. In some cases, personal information may not be completely deleted to ensure consistency between the gaming experience or the Steam Community market. For example, matches you play that affect other players' matchmaking data and your scores don't rather, the relationship with these matches will be permanently anonymized. Please note that Valve is obligated to retain certain transaction data under statutory commercial and tax laws for up to ten (10) years. If you withdraw your consent for the processing of your personal data or the child's personal data, we will delete your personal data and the child's personal data without undue delay if the collection and processing of the personal data was based on the withdrawn consent. If you retain the right to object to the processing of your personal data, we will verify your objection and delete your personal data processed by you for the purpose you object to, unless there is another legal basis for processing and preserving the data or if applicable law requires that the data be retained. 5. Anyone who accesses the Data will not sell personal data. However, we may share or provide access to all categories of personal information we collect where necessary for the following business purposes. 5.1 Valve and its subsidiaries may share your personal information with each other and may share your personal information with each other in accordance with paragraph 2 above. In the event of a reorganisation, sale or merger, we may transfer personal data to the third party concerned in accordance with applicable law. 5.2 We may also share your personal information with third-party service providers who provide customer service services in connection with goods, content and services distributed through Steam. We will use your personal information in accordance with this Privacy Policy and only for as long as is necessary to perform customer service services. 5.3 In accordance with Internet standards, we may also share certain information (including your IP address and the identification of the Steam content you wish to access) with our third-party network providers, which provide content-providing network services and game server services in connection with Steam. Our content service providers allow you to transfer the digital content you request, for example when using Steam, using a system of distributed servers that transmit content based on your geographic location. 5.4 Our Google Analytics Website uses google analytics, a web analytics service provided by Google, Inc. (Google). Google Analytics uses cookies to help website operators analyze how visitors use the site. The information generated by the cookie about the use of the website by visitors is usually transmitted and stored by Google to servers in the United States. IP anonymization is activated on this website. The IP addresses of users visiting Steam will be shortened. Only exceptional the full IP address will be forwarded to Google's server in the United States and shortened there. On behalf of the website operator, Google, uses this information to evaluate the website for users, to generate reports on the activity of the website and to provide other services related to the activity of the website and internet usage to the website operators. Google does not associate the IP address transmitted through Google Analytics with other data held by Google. You can refuse to use cookies by selecting the appropriate settings for your browser. Please note, however, that in this case you may not be able to use the full functionality of the website. Learn more about how Google Analytics collects and uses data for www.google.com/policies/privacy/partners. You can also prevent Google from collecting and processing information about your use of the website by downloading and installing the browser plug-in via the link. 5.5 Certain information associated with your Steam user account will be made available to other players and our partners through the Steamworks API. Anyone can access this information by querying your Steam ID. At least the public personality name you choose is to represent you on Steam, and your Avatar image can be accessed, as well as whether you have been banned for cheating in a multiplayer game. You can control the availability of additional information about you through the Steam Social User Profile page; publicly available data on your profile page is automatically available through the Steamworks API. In addition to publicly available information, game developers and publishers can access certain information from the Steamworks API that is directed to users of the games they run. This information contains at least your property in the game in question. Depending on which Steamworks services are used in the game, it may include leaderboard information, your progress in the game, achievements, multiplayer game matchmaking information, in-game elements and other information necessary to run the game, and support. To learn more about the Steamworks services that a game has implemented, please refer to the scared page of the store. Although we do not knowingly share personal identification information, such as your real name or email address, through the Steamworks API through the Steamworks API, all data shared on your public Steam profile is available through the Steamworks API, including information that can make you identifiable. 5.6 The Steam community includes message boards, forums and/or chat areas where users can get ideas and communicate with each other. When you post a message to a board, forum, or chat area, please note that the information becomes publicly available online; therefore do so at his own risk. If the We will post the data against your will on one of our community forums, please use the reporting feature and the Steam Help page to request removal. 5.7 Valve may allow you to link your Steam account to a third-party account. If you agree to link accounts, Valve may collect and combine information that Valve has received from a third party with the data of your Steam user account, to the extent permitted by your consent. If linking accounts requires the transfer of personally personally ed information from Valve to a third party, we will inform you before the link is made, and you will be given the opportunity to consent to the interconnection and transfer of your data. Your use of your data by third parties is subject to the third party's privacy policy, which we encourage you to review. 5.8 Valve may disclose personal information in order to comply with court orders or laws and regulations requiring us to disclose such information. 6. Your rights and control mechanisms The data protection laws of the European Economic Area, California and other territories grant their residents certain rights in relation to their personal data. While other jurisdictions may grant fewer legal rights, we make the tools designed to exercise these rights available to our customers worldwide. In order to make it easy for you to exercise your privacy rights, we provide a separate section on the Steam support page (the Privacy Dashboard). This gives you access to your personal data, allows you to correct and delete it if necessary, and object to their use where you feel it is necessary. To access it, log in to steam support at and select My Account -> Data Related to Your Steam Account. In most cases, you can access, manage, or delete personal information in the Privacy Dashboard, but you can use the steps in section 8 below. As a resident of the European Economic Area, you have the following rights to your personal data: 6.1 Right of access. You have the right to access your personal data, i.e. you can request free (i) information about whether your personal data is retained, (ii) whether you have access to the personal data retained and/or (iii) duplicates of the personal data retained. You can use the right of access to personal information through the Privacy Dashboard. If the application concerns the rights and freedoms of others or is manifestly unfounded or excessive, we reserve the right to charge a reasonable fee (taking into account the administrative costs of taking the information or communication or the action requested) or to refuse to accept the 6.2 Right to rectification. If we process your personal data, we strive to appropriate measures to ensure that your personal data is accurate and up-to-date for the purpose for which it is collected. If your personal information is inaccurate or incomplete, you can change the information you enter in the Privacy Dashboard. 6.3 Right to erasure. You have the right to delete your personal data if the reason for the data collection (see section 2 above) no longer exists, or if there are other legal grounds for deletion. For certain elements of Personal Data, please end them through the Privacy Dashboard or request deletion through the Steam support page. You can also request the deletion of your Steam user account through the Steam support page. As a result of deleting your Steam user account, you will lose access to the Steam Services, including your Steam user account, Subscriptions and information about games related to your Steam user account, as well as the possibility of accessing other services you use with your Steam user account. We allow you to restore your Steam user account within 30 (thirty) days of the request to delete your Steam user account. This feature allows you not to lose your account accidentally because you have lost your account credentials or due to hacking. During the suspension period, we can finalize financial and other activities that you initiated before submitting a request to delete your Steam user account. After the grace period, the personal data associated with your account will be processed in the 4th EDT. Above. In some cases, deleting your Steam user account and thus deleting your personal information is complicated. Namely, if your account is in business with Valve, for example because of your work with the game developer, you can only delete your Steam user account if you have delegated this role to another user or terminated the business relationship. In certain cases, taking into account the complexity and number of applications, the period for the deletion of personal data may be extended by up to two months. 6.4 The right to material assimilation. If the processing of your personal data is based on section 6 of section GDPR/ 2 of this Privacy Policy, c the data protection policy. If you object to them, we will no longer process your personal data, unless article 21 of the GDPR applies, in particular where the data is necessary for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims. You also have the right to complain to the supervisory authority. 6.5 The right to restrict the processing of personal data You have the right to have the right to access personal data in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format, and you have the right to transfer this data to another controller in the framework of Article 20 of the GDPR. Valve uses the Privacy Dashboard to make your personal information available in structured HTML format through the privacy dashboard described above. 6.7 The right to post-mortem verification of your personal data, if the French data protection legislation applies to you, you have the right to establish guidelines for the retention, deletion and transfer of personal data after your death, in accordance with Article 7 of the 1978 Sombre Agreement. Children The minimum age for creating a Steam user account is 13 years. Valve does not knowingly collect personal information from children older than this. If certain countries apply a higher age limit to the collection of personal data, Valve requires parental consent before creating a Steam user account and collecting related personal data. Valve encourages parents to instruct their children never to release personal information online. 8. Contact: You can contact Valve's Data Protection Officer at the following address. While reviewing the requests sent in the letter, please note that in order to combat fraud, harassment and identity theft, access, correction or deletion of the data is only possible by logging in with your Steam user account and selecting menu items -> View my account -> Account information. The Privacy Shield Principles describe Valve's accountability for personal information that it later transmits to a third-party agent. Under the Principles, Valve will remain liable if third-party agents process personal information in a manner inconsistent with the Principles, unless Valve proves that it is not responsible for the event that caused the damage. The Federal Trade Commission has jurisdiction over Valve's compliance with the Privacy Shield. 10. Additional information for California users CCPA gives California residents certain privacy rights in connection with the personal information we collect. We are committed to respecting these rights and respecting the CCPA. Below are these rights and Valve's practices in relation to them. You have a right to know. Under the CCPA, you have the right to request that we tell you what Personal Information we collect, use, disclose and sell. Right to request deletion. You also have the right to request the deletion of personal data in our possession, with certain exceptions. Please note that your request to delete data may in some cases affect your use of the Steam Service and we may refuse to delete the data for the reasons set out in this Privacy Policy or for reasons permitted by the CCPA. Other rights. CCPA also gives California residents the right to opt out of selling their personal information. Article 5(2) shall be replaced by the following You also have the right to be notified of our practices by collecting or prior to the collection of your personal data. Finally, you have the right not to be discriminated against for exercising your rights under the CCPA. Exercise of your rights. The primary way to access, manage, or delete personal information is through the Privacy Dashboard, as set out in Article 6 of this Policy. Customers may also delete their Steam account and related personal information as described in section 6.3 of this Privacy Policy. If you are unable to access or delete the data through the Privacy Dashboard, you can also contact us with a request to exercise these rights in the . Your identity you must be logged in to your Steam user account to use the form. Finally, you can contact us by questions@valvesoftware.com before your personal information, or any personal data we receive in the email, we must verify your identity using the process described in the email. You may designate an authorised agent in writing or by proxy to request the exercise of your rights under the CCPA on your behalf. Before accepting such an agent, we require the agent to provide evidence that you have authorized him to act on your behalf and may need to verify his identity directly with us. Categories, sources, purposes and recipients of the data we collect. Over the past 12 months, we have collected personal information in accordance with Article 3 of this Privacy Policy. The sources of the collection of personal data and the purposes for which we collect and process it shall be as set out in Article 2. Over the past 12 months, we have disclosed each category of Personal Data for business purposes to third party categories in the 5th Century. Version date: 1. 2020. The following definitions, where we talk about the following personal data, are information that may either identify you as an individual (Personally Identifiable Information) or that may be indirectly related to you by linking it to personally identifiable information. Valve also processes anonymous data, aggregated or not, to analyze and produce statistics about customer habits, usage patterns, and demographics as a group or individuals. Such anonymous data does not allow you to identify the customers to whom it relates. Valve may or may not share anonymous information with third parties. 2. Why does Valve collect and process the data, Valve collects and processes personal information for the following reasons: (a) if the provision of a full-featured game service and the related Content and Services are necessary to fulfill our agreement with you; (b) where necessary to fulfill legal obligations under tax legislation (e.g. our obligation to retain certain information under tax laws); (c) if this is necessary for the legitimate and legal interests of Valve or a third party (e.g. the interests of our other clients) (e.g. the interests of our other clients), unless such interests are overridden by your existing legitimate interests and rights; (d) if you have given your consent. These reasons for collecting and processing Personal Data determine and limit what personal data we collect and how we use it (see section 3 below), how long we store it (section 4 below), who has access to it (section 5 below), and what rights and other control mechanisms are available to you as a user (section 6 below). 3. Types and sources of data we collect 3.1 Basic account information When you set up an Account, Valve collects your email address and country of residence. You must also enter a user name and password. This information is required to register your Steam user account. When you set up your account, your account brings a number (the Steam ID) that we later use for your user account link without directly revealing personal identification information about you. We do not require you to enter or use your real name to set up your Steam user account. 3.2 Transaction and payment information In order to complete a transaction on Steam (e.g. purchase content and service subscriptions or fund your Steam Wallet), you may need to provide payment information to Valve to enable the transaction. If you pay by credit card, you must provide Valve with the typical credit card information (name, address, credit card number, expiration date and security code) that Valve processes and forwards to the payment service provider of your choice to enable the transaction and perform anti-fraud checks. Similarly, Valve receives data from its payment service provider for the same reasons. 3.3 Other information that you explicitly submit, collect and process personal information when you explicitly provide it to us or send it as part of communications with others via Steam, such as on Steam community forums, chats, or when you provide feedback or other user-generated content. This information includes: information that you post, comment on or follow in any of our Content and Services; Information sent via chat; Information you provide when you request information or support from us or purchase Content and Services from us, including information necessary to process your orders with that payment merchant or, in the case of physical goods, with forwarders; The information you provide when you participate in tournaments, tournaments and competitions or respond to surveys, such as your contact information. 3.4 When you use the Steam Client and the Websites, we collect different information about the general use of the websites, content and services offered by Steam. Through. Personal information we collect may include, but is not limited to, browser and device data, automated electronic interactions, and app usage data. Similarly, we track your process through our websites and apps to check that you are not a robot and to optimize our services. Services. Use of the Games and other subscriptions In order to provide you with services, we must collect, store and use different information about your activities in the Content and Services. Content information includes your Steam ID and what is commonly called game statistics. During game statistics, we think about game preferences, game progress, game time, and the device you're using, including the operating system you're using, device settings, unique device IDs, and crash data. 3.6 Tracking Data and Cookies Cookies, which are text files placed on your computer and similar technologies (e.g. web beacons, pixels, advertising tags and device identifiers), to help us analyze how users use our services and to improve the services we offer to improve marketing, analysis or website functionality. The use of cookies is standard on the Internet. Although most web browsers automatically accept cookies, the decision whether or not to accept them is yours. You can change your browser settings to prevent cookies from being received or to notify you when a cookie is sent to you. You can refuse to use cookies by selecting the appropriate settings for your browser. For more information on how to manage the use of cookies in each browser, see . However, please note that if you do this, you may not be able to access the full functionality of our websites. When you visit any of our services, our servers log your IP address, which is a number that is automatically assigned to the network of which your computer is part. 3.7 Content Recommendations For the purposes of this Article 3(1) and (2) and (3) and (3) and (3) This is done to improve the customer experience. You can prevent your data from being processed in this way by turning off the automatic loading of the Steam store page and Steam notifications in the Interface section of steam customer settings. If you specifically consent, or if expressly permitted by e-mail marketing laws, Valve may send you marketing messages about the products and services offered by Valve to your email address. In such a case, we may use the information we collect to customize such marketing messages and to collect information about whether you opened these messages and which links you followed in their text. You can unsubscribe or withdraw your consent to receive marketing e-mails at any time by withdrawing your consent on the same page where you previously provided it, or link to all marketing emails. 3.8 Information necessary for the detection of violations We collect certain data that is necessary to detect, investigate and prevent SSA and applicable laws (Violations). This data will only be used for the purpose of detecting, investigating, preventing and, where appropriate, relevant to such infringements and will only be stored for the minimum period necessary for this purpose. If the data indicate that there has been an infringement, we will continue to store data on the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims during the applicable limitation period or until a legal case is resolved. Please note that we will not disclose any specific data stored for this purpose to you if the disclosure compromises the mechanism through which we detect, investigate and prevent such violations. 4. The duration of the storage of the data We will store your data only for as long as is necessary to fulfill the purposes for which the data are collected and processed, or, where the applicable law requires a longer storage and retention period, for the statutory storage and retention period. Your personal information will then be deleted, blocked or anonymised, in accordance with applicable law. In particular: If you terminate your Steam user account, your personal data will be deleted unless legal requirements or other legitimate purposes allow for longer storage. In some cases, personal information may not be completely deleted to ensure consistency between the gaming experience or the Steam Community market. For example, matches you play that affect other players' matchmaking data and your scores are not deleted; rather, the relationship with these matches will be permanently anonymized. Please note that Valve is obligated to retain certain transaction data under statutory commercial and tax laws for up to ten (10) years. If you withdraw your consent for the processing of your personal data or the child's personal data, we will delete your personal data and the child's personal data without undue delay if the collection and processing of the personal data was based on the withdrawn consent. If you retain the right to object to the processing of your personal data, we will verify your objection and delete your personal data processed by you for the purpose you object to, unless there is another legal basis for processing and preserving the data or if applicable law requires that the data be retained. 5. Anyone who accesses the Data will not sell personal data. However, we may share or provide access to the categories of personal data, where necessary for the following business purposes. 5.1 Valve and subsidiaries may share your personal data with each other and the information referred to in paragraph 2 above shall be used. In the event of a reorganisation, sale or merger, we may transfer personal data to the third party concerned in accordance with applicable law. 5.2 We may also share your personal information with third-party service providers who provide customer service services in connection with goods, content and services distributed through Steam. We will use your personal information in accordance with this Privacy Policy and only for as long as is necessary to perform customer service services. 5.3 In accordance with Internet standards, we may also share certain information (including your IP address and the identification of the Steam content you wish to access) with our third-party network providers, which provide content-providing network services and game server services in connection with Steam. Our content service providers allow you to transfer the digital content you request, for example when using Steam, using a system of distributed servers that transmit content based on your geographic location. 5.4 Our Google Analytics Website uses google analytics, a web analytics service provided by Google, Inc. (Google). Google Analytics uses cookies to help website operators analyze how visitors use the site. The information generated by the cookie about the use of the website by visitors is usually transmitted and stored by Google to servers in the United States. IP anonymization is activated on this website. The IP addresses of users visiting Steam will be shortened. Only in exceptional cases will the full IP address be forwarded to google's server in the United States and shortened there. On behalf of the website operator, Google uses this information to evaluate the website for users, to generate reports on website activity and to provide other services related to website activity and internet usage to website operators. Google does not associate the IP address transmitted through Google Analytics with other data held by Google. You can refuse to use cookies by selecting the appropriate settings for your browser. Please note, however, that in this case you may not be able to use the full functionality of the website. Learn more about how Google Analytics collects and uses data for www.google.com/policies/privacy/partners. You can also prevent Google from collecting and processing information about your use of the website by downloading and installing the browser plug-in via the link below: 5.5 Certain information associated with your Steam user account will be made available to other players and our partners through the Steamworks API. This information can be accessed by anyone Steam ID. At least the public personality name you choose is to represent you on Steam, and your Avatar image is available, as well as whether you have been banned for cheating in a multiplayer game. You can control the availability of additional information about you through the Steam Social User Profile page; publicly available data on your profile page is automatically available through the Steamworks API. In addition to publicly available information, game developers and publishers can access certain information from the Steamworks API that is directed to users of the games they run. This information contains at least your property in the game in question. Depending on which Steamworks services are used in the game, it may include leaderboard information, your progress in the game, achievements, multiplayer game matchmaking information, in-game elements and other information necessary to run the game, and support. To learn more about the Steamworks services that a game has implemented, please refer to the scared page of the store. Although we do not knowingly share personal identification information, such as your real name or email address, through the Steamworks API through the Steamworks API, all data shared on your public Steam profile is available through the Steamworks API, including information that can make you identifiable. 5.6 The Steam community includes message boards, forums and/or chat areas where users can exchange ideas and communicate with each other. When you post a message to a board, forum, or chat area, please note that the information becomes publicly available online; therefore do so at his own risk. If you want to post your personal information against your will on one of our community forums, please use the reporting feature and the Steam Help page to request removal. 5.7 Valve may allow you to link your Steam account to a third-party account. If you agree to link accounts, Valve may collect and combine information that Valve has received from a third party with the data of your Steam user account, to the extent permitted by your consent. If linking accounts requires the transfer of personally personally ed information from Valve to a third party, we will inform you before the link is made, and you will be given the opportunity to consent to the interconnection and transfer of your data. Your use of your data by third parties is subject to the third party's privacy policy, which we encourage you to review. 5.8 Valve may provide personal data to comply with the orders or laws and regulations that require us to disclose such information. 6. Your rights and control mechanisms The European Economic Area's data protection data protection and other areas grant their residents certain rights in relation to their personal information. While other jurisdictions may grant fewer legal rights, we make the tools designed to exercise these rights available to our customers worldwide. In order to make it easy for you to exercise your privacy rights, we provide a separate section on the Steam support page (the Privacy Dashboard). This gives you access to your personal data, allows you to correct and delete it if necessary, and object to their use where you feel it is necessary. To access it, log in to Steam support at and select My Account -> Data Related to Your Steam Account. In most cases, you can access, manage, or delete personal information in the Privacy Dashboard, but you can use the steps in section 8 below. As a resident of the European Economic Area, you have the following rights to your personal data: 6.1 Right of access. You have the right to access your personal data, i.e. you can request free (i) information about whether your personal data is retained, (ii) whether you have access to the personal data retained and/or (iii) duplicates of the personal data retained. You can use the right of access to personal information through the Privacy Dashboard. 6.2 Right to erasure. You have the right to delete your personal data if the reason for the data collection (see section 2 above) no longer exists, or if there are other legal grounds for deletion. For certain elements of Personal Data, please delete them through the Privacy Dashboard or request deletion through the Steam support page. You can also request the deletion of your Steam user account through the Steam support page. As a result of deleting your Steam user account, you will lose access to the Steam Services, including your Steam user account, Subscriptions and information about games related to your Steam user account, as well as the possibility of accessing other services you use with your Steam user account. We allow you to use your Steam user account for 30 (thirty) days after the grace period from the moment the User account is deleted. This feature allows you not to lose your account accidentally because you have lost your account credentials or due to hacking. During the suspension period, we can finalize financial and other activities that you initiated before submitting a request to delete your Steam user account. After the grace period, the personal data associated with your account will be processed in the 4th EDT. Above. In some cases, deleting your Steam user account and thus deleting your personal information is complicated. Namely, if your account is in business with Valve, for example because of your work with the game developer, you can only delete your Steam user account if you have delegated this role to another user or terminated the business relationship. In certain cases, taking into account the complexity and number of applications, the period for the deletion of personal data may be extended by up to two months. 6.4 The right to material assimilation. If the processing of your personal data is based on section 6 of section GDPR/ 2 of this Privacy Policy, the data protection policy. If you object to them, we will no longer process your personal data, unless article 21 of the GDPR applies, in particular where the data is necessary for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims. You also have the right to complain to the supervisory authority. 6.5 The right to restrict the processing of personal data You have the right to receive your personal data in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format and the right to transfer such data to another controller in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format, and you have the right to transfer such data to another controller in the framework of Article 20 of the GDPR. Valve uses the Privacy Dashboard to make your personal information available in structured HTML format through the privacy dashboard described above. 6.7 The right to post-mortem verification of your personal data, if the French data protection legislation applies to you, you have the right to establish guidelines for the retention, deletion and transfer of personal data after your death, in accordance with Article 7 of the 1978 Sombre Agreement. Children The minimum age for creating a Steam user account is 13 years. Valve does not knowingly collect personal information from children older than this. If certain countries apply a higher age limit to the collection of personal data, Valve requires parental consent before creating a Steam user account and collecting related personal data. Valve encourages parents to children to never give out personal information when they are online. 8. Contact: You can contact Valve's Data Protection Officer at the following address. While reviewing the requests sent in the letter, please note that in order to combat fraud, harassment and identity theft, access, correction or deletion of the data is only possible by logging in with your Steam user account and selecting menu items -> View my account -> Account information.
