Translate web page firefox

By default, the add-on attempts to assign the detected language to the default target language. If that is not possible, English is the target language of the translation. It is highly recommended to choose less text than more, otherwise the translation will take longer to appear. You can select text up to 1100 characters long. If you select longer text, you will in some cases receive a toast notification. You shouldn't select pictures or tables because they disappear and mystical text appears there. Let's see how it works. First of all, you are looking for something that you do not understand because it is in another language. Secondly, you select this section or phrase. Now you can go in three directions:- Right-click and click on the Translate this text with Google Translate. - Click the Toolbar icon.- Press the keyboard shortcut. As soon as the translation progress starts, the red T will come green, and as soon as the translation ends, it would be red again. Within a moment or two, you'll see that the selection disappears and text appears in your language. No, it's okay, it's okay. Or, if you want to flip the entire page, you can also use the three ways mentioned above. Options:you will find this menu if: - right-click on red T (or before Firefox 57 click on the small arrow next to it) and click Settings - go to the Add-ons menu and click on the configuration of this add-on, which you can set here: - what language you want to translate into - what (and how) to translate when you click red T or press a keyboard shortcut - keyboard shortcut (only before FF57)Available target languages: you can translate for each language you can find on the Google Translate page (. If you found a language that is not listed in this add-on, comment below. The language of the original text is automatically recognized. Available user interface languages: Bulgarian, Chinese (Simplified), Czech, Danish, Dutch, English, French, German, Hungarian, Japanese, Korean, Latvian, Polish, Portuguese (Brazilian), Russian, Serbian, Slovenian, Spanish (Spain), Turkish. Translations are powered by Google Translate, the add-on uses its translator program.구글 번역기로 선택된 부분 또는 전체 페이지를 번역합니다. Use Google Translate or Bing Microsoft Translator to compile any page by opening the appropriate URL. By default, the translation is performed by using the page actions in the Address bar. The Flip icon appears only if the page is in a foreign language. The page turner determines whether a page is in a foreign language by comparing the list of languages you specify in Firefox as primary languages (Settings > Content > Languages) with the language of the page that is configured with the built-in Firefox API. Firefox for Android doesn't support language detection yet, so the translate icon is always visible. Options Automatically configure the snap-in to redirect to the translation site if a foreign language is detected, or always display the translation icon. If you want the translation to be available but not in the Address bar, you can always turn it on to display and remove it from the Address bar by right-clicking. it is still available .... Drop down. When you select text, the translation button opens and the translation appears immediately. If you turn on Don't show the button if you don't need a translation, you won't be frustrated by the button that appears when it's not necessary. Translate the input text in real time in the toolbar pop-up window. If you turn on automatically switch to another language, you can do: When you enter English, it is translated into Japanese, and after you enter Japanese, it is translated into English. You can also translate from the shortcut menu. You can click Flip This Page, Translate Selected Text, and then click Translate Selected Link from the page or tab menu. USERS: If you translate it many times in a short time, it may be unusable for some time due to a change in the definition of the compilation interface. If it happens frequently, it is recommended that you increase the translation wait time on the settings page.
